Rusk Asks Help

Will Canada Play Ball?

WASHINGTON (CP)—State Secretary Dean Rusk virtually invited Canada and other countries to join with the U.S. and a majority of Latin American countries in isolating Cuba from the rest of the western hemisphere.

Rusk said Thursday on his return from the Punta del Este conference that the U.S. intends to do all it can to block the flow of Soviet-type arms from Cuba to other Latin American countries.

PROMOTE SUBVERSION

Rusk also said U.S. intelligence has discovered that Premier Castro of Cuba is using dollars and other foreign exchange to promote Communist subversion in neighboring countries.

A Canadian correspondent, then asked:

"Mr. Secretary, on that point... to what extent would all the resolutions accepted at the Punta del Este conference be effective without the active participation by Canada?"

Rusk answered: "Well, of course, we do hope that other countries, having seen the clear expressions of policy and attitude of the Organization of American States, would consider—and I am not referring to any single country—would consider whether they might align their policies with the policies of the inter-American system."

Infuriating Princess More Fun, Anyway

LONDON (CP)—A woman reporter springs to the defence of Princess Margaret. Anna Sharpley, who has covered numerous royal tours, takes note of recent criticisms of Margaret, acknowledges that the Queen's sister is sometimes a little difficult, but sums up: "Well... she's a princess. What else do we really expect? Don't we get a private kick from having a full-blooded, contrary, infuriating princess? Isn't she more fun than a line-tossing, anxious-to-please princess?"

A perilous two-day adventure aboard this 16-foot outboard bobbing at the mercy of the tide in Juan de Fuca Strait ended yesterday when two runaway boys were rescued near Whidbey Island.

Hydro Strikes Banned

Employees of the new provincial hydro-electric authority will be given full collective bargaining rights, but they will not have the right to strike, Labor Minister Peterson said yesterday.

Instead of the strike and lockout provisions accorded other trade unions and private employers, the hydro authority and its employees will be subject to binding arbitration procedures in cases of disputes.

Mr. Peterson made the statements in the legislature as he outlined the government's approach to the trade union problem involved in its takeover of the B.C. Electric Co. and the subsequent merging of the B.C. Electric with the B.C. Power Commission, a move forecast in the Speech from the Throne.

FUNDAMENTAL RIGHT

In Victoria, labor council secretary Alf Toone wasn't impressed.

"For the minister to say workers will have all the bargaining rights but the right to strike is to say they have been given fringe concessions but were denied their most fundamental right."

"I believe that as a last resort an employee must be allowed the right to withdraw his services from an employer. The fact that the government is the employer doesn't alter the question."

But in Vancouver, the Electrical Workers' Union and the Office Employees' Union welcomed the government's announcement as a constructive

Socialists Attack 'Huge Profits' Of Oil Magnate

Made $11,000,000 'For Signature'

By PETER BRUTON

The NDP-CCF opposition launched a massive frontal attack on oil magnate Frank McMahon yesterday and demanded that the government resign for not protecting the public against the oilman's "stock-profiteering."

Alex Macdonald (NDP-CCF—Vancouver East) charged that Westcoast Transmission made $11,000,000 simply by signing an agreement with the Social Credit government to build a crude oil pipeline from Fort St. John south to Kamloops.

"This scandal is far worse than the scandal that rocked the Liberal government out of Ottawa in 1957," it was charged.

The motion that the government resign was defeated 32 to 14 with the four-man Liberal group voting with the government.

SMEAR CHARGE

Alan Macfarlane (L-Oak Bay) charged that the real purpose behind the NDP-CCF motion was to "smear" Frank McMahon without giving him the benefit of a full and impartial hearing.

The NDP-CCF speakers bitterly assailed Mr. McMahon as a man who had made millions of dollars in "political payoffs" from the Social Credit government.

NOT FACT

Minister Kenneth Kiernan, his voice shaking with anger, charged that the opposition resolution was not only unsound, it was unethical, and the statements supporting it were not statements of fact at all.

Construction of the Western Pacific pipeline by the McMahon interests, he said, was the soundest proposal suggested by any company and would be of great benefit to the economy of B.C. not only today but in the future as well.

COST 10,000 JOBS

Mr. Macdonald, speaking in the Throne Speech debate, recalled that in the 1960 provincial election campaign, Mr. McMahon had stated that the defeat of the Social Credit government would cost 10,000 jobs in the province.

He has reaped a tremendous political payoff for this "investment," he said.

STOCK OPTIONS

He said the oil man had picked up stock options on 155,000 shares at five cents each on the construction of the Westcoast natural gas pipeline. The shares cost him $7,750. By 1960 they were worth $2,790,000.

Mr. Macdonald charged that another company had been given the right to build the crude oil line which was eventually built by Western Pacific but the government ruled this company out of contention "and there was only one person left who could build it—Frank McMahon."

LIKE A MOTHER

"This government has been like a mother to Frank McMahon," said the Vancouver lawyer.

In April last year an agreement between Westcoast Transmission and Western Pacific gave the new company "the right to utilize the right of way of Westcoast Transmission presently in existence from Taylor to Kamloops."

For this, Westcoast was given 750,000 shares of Western Pacific in payment. Today those shares "before there was one whiff of crude

Peace Permit Sought

The British Columbia government expects to apply shortly to Ottawa for a permit under the Navigable Waters Act allowing construction of the Peace River hydro-electric dam.

Lands and Forests Minister Williston told this to reporters Thursday night after he ran through a long list of actual construction steps, now underway or about to proceed, that the legislature anyone who thinks the Peace River hydro project is not going ahead is being foolish and unrealistic.

He was asked outside the House when the province would seek authority under the federal Navigable Waters Act for the construction of the dam.

FILED IMMEDIATELY

"That's being prepared right now and will be filed with Ottawa almost immediately," he said.

The act is considered the only device Ottawa has to block construction of the Peace project in order to see that the Columbia River hydro electric development proceed first.

The application is expected to bring to a head the differences between Ottawa and Victoria over Columbia financing.

British Columbia has stated its policy as being one of simultaneous development of the Peace and the Columbia which Ottawa has indicated is not feasible if the Columbia is to proceed under terms of the International Columbia Treaty.

Premier Bennett wants to stall B.C.'s Columbia dam stream benefit power in the

Runaways Found Adrift

By JACK PEY

Two runaway boys from Victoria who drifted powerlessly for two days in Juan de Fuca Strait in a boat taken from the Oak Bay boathouse were rescued yesterday by an American fisherman.

The youths, 13 and 14 years of age, ran away Tuesday night from the Carey Road foster home. A 16-foot outboard motorboat owned by Herbert Shaw, 1856 Monteith, was taken from the boathouse the same evening.

Two Days In Boat

The boys will be returned to Victoria today. They were kept overnight at the Chillam County juvenile home.

Washington State police said the boys turned themselves in yesterday afternoon and that they admitted they took the boat because they "wanted to see the world."

Fisherman Tom Phillips, 38, of Port Angeles, told the Colonist last night he came upon the stranded boys about 2 p.m. in a dense fog at Helm's Bank near Whidbey Island.

He cut short his fishing trip to take them back to Port Angeles where they said they lived. He said he fed them hot chocolate, tinned peaches and crackers and took their outboard in tow behind his 42-foot trawler Sirohean.

The $2,200 boat, powered by twin 10-horsepower outboard motors, was undamaged, said the fisherman. And the two boys were wearing life jackets when he found them.

Phillips said the boys told him they hadn't eaten in more than two days and that they had been drifting with the tide since about 9 p.m. Tuesday when they ran out of gas.

Comic Opera

Gibson Scores Spending Power 'Mania'

By ALEC MERRIMAN

The government was lectured for more than an hour last night by millionaire Gordon Gibson (L—North Vancouver).

And his speech was both funny and serious — often stormy, but sometimes quiet — had the House and public galleries in gusts of laughter and at times the premier and government members squirming in their seats.

It was a funnier show than many comic operas, but through all the speech there was a sting. Often his address was aimed at the premier instead of the speaker.

Mr. Gibson said he had been in Hawaii for three months (he has interests there) and that he didn't go there for selfish reasons.

"I have been there preparing a place for you. I don't believe in capital punishment for political prisoners. I would rather throw them in exile," he said. "I built 12 lovely cottages. It's a lovely place... palm trees... And I haven't told them a word about Social Credit, so you will be very welcome," he said.

But, he warned the premier: If he goes on spending money like he is, he won't even have the one-way fare to Hawaii.

FUT ON BARGE

"I would like you to have all your books and everything ready. I would like them put on a barge like you had at Kelowna and after the next election everything can go up."

"Will your yacht be included?" laughed the premier. "I would like to get rid of it

Weather Expert Summoned

Like this little boy in Tanna with his eye on a groundhog, amateur weather forecasters here will be watching the groundhog today to pin down a date for spring's arrival. Before meteorologists came along, winter was sure to last another six weeks if the groundhog could see his shadow on Feb. 2.

In Darkest Saanich

Roaring lions keep him awake at night and rifle shots shatter the daylight hours of Daniel MacDonald. But he failed to get the assessment lowered on his property at 281 Durrance Road.

"You are getting a trip to Africa for nothing," District 63 court of revision chairman H. E. Alder told him yesterday.

Mr. MacDonald complained that "every moonlit night the house shakes when the lions roar." His property is adjacent to both a zoo and a rifle range and during the daytime "we have to listen to that noise."

"It's an odd combination," said Mr. Alder sympathetically. "Unfortunately, although this is probably a nuisance to you, it is something that we cannot consider."

Another property owner who appealed against his assessment lost his case but gained a higher assessment for a neighbor. Dr. Everard Nash, 2785 Somas Drive, appealed against a 22 per cent increase in the assessment of five acres he owns on Patricia Bay Highway.

He lost the appeal but while Saanich assessors were comparing figures for nearby land they discovered the error in the neighbor's assessment.

Sunny Britain Aloof Of Common Freeze

LONDON (Reuters) — Blizzards belted Europe Thursday, disrupting road and air traffic while gale-whipped seas played havoc with shipping.

The only bright spot in the picture was Britain with a rare day of sunshine.

In Norway and Denmark, power lines were down and roads blocked following one of the worst storms of the winter.

In Sweden, snow piled as high as 20 feet and gales tore the sails off windmills.

The 299-ton West German coaster Han was reported in trouble near the Sejerø Island reef in the Kattegat, between Denmark and Sweden. Helicopters and ships have gone to her assistance.

Further east, the Yugoslav news agency Tanjug reported "unprecedented" gales and blizzards along the Adriatic coast in which 17 persons were injured, houses unroofed and trees uprooted.

The Soviet news agency Tass reported the Russian salvage vessel Atlant is battling a violent storm and winds of up to 80 miles an hour to reach a Yugoslav ship aground in the Black Sea.

Prayers Battle Planets

NEW DELHI (UPI) — Hindu priests and holy men embarked last night on a series of 11th hour prayers and rituals they hope will ward off the evil effects of a planetary traffic jam their astrologers say will mean doom this weekend.

Fear of disaster was reported in the Buddhist Himalayan nations and a dispatch from Katmandu said government speakers toured the streets of the Nepal capital to try to reassure the frightened population.

King Mahendra of Nepal ordered the arrest of 156 astrologers who predicted evil might befall him and his kingdom from across the mountains. But the fear remained. Most Nepalis have fled the towns to live in tents until the worst is over.

Kashmir Threats Shelved

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — Pakistan and India hurled war charges at each other over Kashmir yesterday in the Security Council, which then adjourned debate until after India's general election late this month.

Pakistani Ambassador Muhammad Zafrulla Khan accused Prime Minister Nehru, Defence Minister Krishna Menon and other Indian leaders of fanning war flames over Kashmir, the oldest active issue on the council's agenda, debated intermittently since 1948.

Indian Ambassador C. S. Jha said that from Pakistani leaders "comes a constant barrage of threats, including the use of force, for the so-called liberation of Kashmir."

Jha said Pakistan sought to take advantage of the "pre-occupation" of India's voters with the country's elections—scheduled Feb. 19 to 26—to raise anew the Kashmir bogey. Both Zafrulla and Jha assured the council their countries had no intention of starting a war over Kashmir.

Zafrulla warned that if war started in Kashmir, which is adjacent both to Russia and Communist China, it could not be confined to the Indian subcontinent or even to the continent of Asia.

U.S. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson, who became council president yesterday, noted the announced intentions of both India and Pakistan to treat the Kashmir case "in a peaceful manner and without employment of force."

Noting these assurances and India's request for postponement, he adjourned the debate "until sometime after March 1." Soviet Ambassador Valerian Zorin supported Stevenson's suggestion and the other eight council members silently concurred.

Reds Seal Doom Of Laos Outpost

VIENTIANE, Laos (UPI) — The pro-Communist rebels opened fire yesterday on the airstrip at the beleaguered provincial capital of Nam Tha, cutting its air supply line and apparently sealing its doom.

The barrage by Soviet-built 120-millimetre mortars forced the removal of four T-6 light planes. They were sent in last weekend to help defend the government outpost with rocket and machinegun fire.

Reports from Luang Prabang said none of the American advisers on the spot had been flown out. They had said they would march into the jungles with the Laotian forces rather than fly out in the face of attack.

A Myopic Policy

CANADA'S EXTERNAL Affairs Minister Howard Green is to be congratulated for administering a well deserved verbal rap over the knuckles to United States presidential assistant Arthur Schlesinger who earlier this week took it upon himself to criticize Canada's trade with Cuba.

One of President Kennedy's senior advisers, Mr. Schlesinger was reported as declaring in Vancouver during a weekend stopover that Canada's commercial dealings with Cuba were damaging prospects for democratic reform in Latin America. "Anything," he is quoted as saying, "that supports Castro threatens the prospects of democratic success in Latin America."

Deliberately tempering his admonishment with diplomacy, Mr. Green replied: "If (Mr. Schlesinger's statement) was made in the terms suggested it is a most unusual and, I think, improper thing for an official of another country to do."

Had he not been bound both by his position and a natural gentlemanly disposition, Mr. Green might have been tempted to ask just how Canada's small interchange of trade with Cuba—restricted to non-strategic goods as authorized by NATO—could possibly threaten Latin American democracy or, for that matter, give active support to the Castro regime.

Already it is the opinion of many members of the Western Alliance that it is not trading with Cuba that constitutes the major danger to the advance of democracy throughout Central and South America, but the dictatorial head-in-sand attitude of Washington.

To many, it appears obvious that the narrow policy which the United States government is attempting to impose upon the Western nations, does nothing but play directly into the hands of Mr. Khrushchev whose greatest boast is that he and his Communist allies will win on the battlefield of economics.

There is much to be said in favor of this point of view and United States government authorities would be well advised to study it carefully. If they can be persuaded to raise their eyes beyond their own national interests they would find that they have created a vast reservoir of ill-will among their own allies through the persistent pursuance of their present myopic course.

The constant official attempts by Washington to scotch trading pacts between NATO countries and nations within the Communist bloc—such as the ill-fated 1957 automobile deal between Canada and Red China and, more recently, the British sale of six Viscount aircraft to the Peking government—plus the perpetual stream of unofficial criticism such as that voiced by Mr. Schlesinger, has resulted in a build-up of resentment among the allies against American high-handedness.

A situation that must please Mr. Khrushchev.

Mr. George Hobbs

THE LEGISLATURE was saddened unexpectedly this week when on the eve of his contribution to the Throne Speech debate the NDP-CCF member for Revelstoke, Mr. George Hobbs, died suddenly in his sleep.

Mr. Hobbs was comparatively new to the House, being elected in 1960, but already had impressed his colleagues with his quality and had gained the accolade of being "a happy man." This in spite of the bread of adversity he had known in life, said his leader, Mr. Strachan, a tribute in itself to the calibre of the Revelstoke M.L.A.

Still a young man, Mr. Hobbs was thus robbed of the parliamentary life to which he had set his hand, and in which his imprint was making itself felt. His death is a loss to his constituents and to his party, and this newspaper joins in the regrets which have been voiced with sympathy and awareness of the personal deprivation suffered by his family.

The National Ethos

A BRIEF news item from Ottawa says no postage stamp will be issued to commemorate Christmas. One hadn't known any such proposal had been made, which in any case might imply that Yuletide seasons were a thing of the past.

It is not the disclaimer that astonishes but the reason given; because of the government's policy to promote religious tolerance and mutual respect.

This would suggest an obedience to the minority in whose life Christmas or Christianity plays no part and a negation of the tenets inherent in our society. Ours is a Christian society, and the principles of justice and freedom we enjoy stem from the Christian ethos which characterizes national life.

There may be no need for a special stamp, but there is every need for the upholding of the civilization which reaches its peak of awareness at Christmas.

Expensive Study

SAANICH COUNCIL has given qualified approval to a proposed study of Greater Victoria's road needs for the next 20 years and the idea also has been endorsed by Mayor Wilson. It might be as well if both would take a second look, not with any thought of scrapping the project, but to see if it need be so expensive.

There can be no doubt that a long-range road development program for Greater Victoria is needed, and that the provincial government and all the municipalities in the area should participate in planning it. The major road layout suggested by the Capital Region Planning Board in 1956, although the result of much study, was described as "only the first step in the preparation of a highway improvement program."

The next steps, the board said, "are to design the final location of the rights-of-way for new roads; to determine pavement widths, and to estimate the cost of major improvements." The board suggested that the municipalities should then adopt five-year capital improvement programs.

The study now proposed presumably would carry Greater Victoria through to the point of having a definite construction plan, and this certainly is desirable.

But the recommendation is that outside consultants be employed, and the estimated cost of the study is $76,000.

Surely here is an instance where outside help is not required. It is difficult to believe that the staffs of the engineering departments and the Capital Region Planning Board are not competent to do this work, and at far less cost.

The study is needed, but must so much be spent

Thinking Aloud

BY TOM TAYLOR

IF I am to believe what I observe among the ladies of my acquaintance, civilization is on the way out.

Do not misunderstand me. I am not suggesting that ladyhood is somehow letting it down. To make amends last you think so let me affirm that she it is who puts the civil element into it.

But the ladies, I cannot help but notice, have cut down on their sugar—except in chocolate eclairs and such delights, of course—and according to an expert on such matters civilization is related to the consumption of sugar.

And most of the fair sex, for a reason I need not elaborate, eschew this sweetening of their tea.

And this is not good, says the expert. But since he is a man from Cuba, from which sugar comes if not with sweetness and light these days, he won't be unbiased. His thesis is that less civilized people use less sugar.

I wouldn't want to believe him, in any case; and certainly not if this denigrates the hostesses on whom I depend to brew me a special pot, with lumps to match the two bags.

Still and all I have been put in a kind of unease by his declaration. I have been casting my mind back over the history that later fashioned into our civilization, and it is not all reassuring.

For instance, many of the VIPs of old look as though they had been well stuffed with sugar. There was Napoleon, with a mind like a whiplash and a high IQ, but a—punch that might have owed much to a sweet factory. Below his toga Julius Caesar, a gentleman of adequate attainment, seems also to have been richly formed. At least he didn't have the Casius look of which he once complained.

And consider Henry the Eighth, who was so civilized he had six wives; he certainly was no bean pole.

If these eminent persons didn't absorb sugar they must have had a most satisfactory substitute.

Coming back to the ladies, also, always a pleasing return journey, they do their bit for civilization, as I hinted above. If the tea-tongs are left forlorn their recipe books—always full of sweetness and temptation—belle any idea that they've turned to vinegar.

Even a Cuban would have to agree on this. Yet if civilization is geared to what we might call the intelligentia, for want of another term, it does seem that his argument is diluted. How far they may have advanced, our society might be debated but not their appearance.

There will be some stout poets extant, no doubt, but the popular image of one is a slim, ascetic chap who looks as though he never tasted Turkish delight. Or even heard of it.

The school teachers I know, too, professors and the like, aren't the chubby, sugary type either in form or manners, albeit I presume avoidpouls is not unknown among them. But it seems to be that the intellectual is apt to look as though he's more full of vegetables than of sugar.

Brains are not supposed to be allied to brawn; perhaps this is a dispensation of providence.

Nevertheless, mulling it over, it can scarcely be denied that as nations became what we call civilized, sugar, in the form of sweetness of appetite and living, was their undoing.

Think of today if you doubt this. It is the well-flavored who are having their troubles. I have a personal conclusion however to restore my equanimity. I like my sugar yet manage to retain a Casius look. This might be mere chance; or it might symbolize an even balance.

Anyway the Cuban was probably voicing a commercial, so let's forget him.

Russia and Berlin

A Change in Tactical Approach

By W. N. EWER

THERE has been, during the past few weeks, a quite perceptible change in the attitude of the Soviet government on the Berlin question although not a change in basic policy. The Russian proposals for the future status of West Berlin as a "demilitarized free city" have been restated in terms which have not differed in essentials from those first put forward three years ago.

But there has been a noteworthy change in the immediate tactical approach. Until, roughly, the end of the year, the immediate objective seemed quite clear. It was to bring every possible pressure on the Western powers to enter as soon as possible into a Berlin negotiation. There were the repeated threats—or warnings—that unless the Western powers showed willingness to negotiate, they would soon be confronted with the fait accompli of a Soviet peace treaty with East Germany, and with a Soviet claim that this would automatically "terminate" all their rights with regard to Berlin. At the same time there were suggestions that Soviet "patience," though strained was not yet exhausted; that if the Western powers would show signs of willingness to negotiate, the threat of the peace treaty would be, at any rate, suspended. It would not be immediately implemented.

The response of the Western powers came as the result of the December meetings in Paris, first of the four foreign ministers, then the whole NATO Council. It was, in effect, that an effort should be made, through quiet ambassadorial talks in Moscow, to find a basis for a negotiation. That, one would have thought, was precisely what the Soviet government wished. One would have thought that its objective would be to push ahead with these preliminary moves, so that the negotiations proper (which it seemed to desire) could start as soon as possible.

Rather surprisingly, however, the Western ambassadors in Moscow had to report that the Russians appeared to be in no hurry at all. Instead of pressing, as they had been pressing, for negotiations as soon as possible, they seemed now to be inclined to spin out the preliminaries—to postpone "negotiations."

At the same time, there came a new, and rather curious, move. It took the form of a series of hints directed to Bonn. That a satisfactory solution both of the Berlin question and of German questions generally might best be sought in direct contacts between the Soviet Union and West Germany, even to the point when Moscow radio began to talk of the "spirit of Rapallo." "Rapallo" was the treaty of friendship between the Soviet Union and Germany in 1922 aimed at co-operation against the entente powers of those days.

These are the facts. They represent a distinct tactical shift in Soviet diplomacy. What is the explanation?

There are some who see in it a reflection of the strains and stresses which are so visible inside the Communist bloc, and inside the Soviet Union itself. They see the picture as one of a "moderate" and "liberal" Mr. Khrushchev, fighting for his thesis of peaceful co-existence against the old guard Stalinists. Mr. Khrushchev, according to this interpretation, is not only ready but anxious for a reasonable settlement with the West over Berlin and Germany. But he is encountering stiff opposition, both from the die-hards of his party. Hence the swings and oscillations of Soviet policy.

I personally see little or no evidence for this. For one thing, one has to remember that it was Mr. Khrushchev himself who, at the end of 1956, quite deliberately created the Berlin crisis. For another, what evidence is there that he is today in anything less than complete control of Soviet policy?

The real explanation of this shift in Soviet policy seems to me more simple. When, in the autumn, the Soviet government was pressing for a speedy Berlin negotiation, it must have thought (as, indeed, did many outside the Soviet Union) that this was an issue on which the NATO alliance would be split from top to bottom. Britain and the United States would favor negotiation; France and Western Germany would be against any sort of negotiation. Britain, and probably the U.S., would be prepared to make considerable concessions for the sake of a settlement; France and West Germany would be against any concessions at all. Here would be a situation which could be exploited to the full.

But the December Paris meetings showed, to Moscow's chagrin, that all these calculations were fallacious. There were still divergences between France and her allies on questions of tactical approach. But on all essentials there was complete solidarity. If a negotiation came now, the Soviet Union would find itself confronted, not with a discordant and quarrelling West, but with a firmly united West.

That being so, either the Soviet Union must itself be prepared to make substantial concessions in order to reach a settlement; or there would be a head-on collision. And that is something which, shrewdly and wisely, Mr. Khrushchev has shown himself anxious to avoid ever since, three years ago, he suddenly announced the existence of a Berlin crisis.

Therefore, whereas a couple of months ago a Berlin negotiation seemed in Moscow to be something to be pressed for, it now seems something to be avoided, at any rate to be postponed, until another effort can be made to divide the, at present, disappointingly united Western front. The flying of these kites for a Soviet-West German rapprochement is a rather crude and clumsy attempt to create a new division.

This, then, seems to me the clear explanation of the shifts and changes in Soviet tactics. They are the consequences, inside the Communist bloc, but of the firm Western reaction to Soviet moves. And not for the first time, they show how wise that reaction has been.

A Well-Timed Meeting

By ROBERT STEPHENS,
from London

NUCLEAR policy and, especially, the question of future Western nuclear tests, are expected to be the main topics when Mr. Macmillan meets President Kennedy in Washington next April.

It will be the fifth meeting between the two men since President Kennedy took office a year ago. Officially, no meeting has yet been arranged, and the reason given for the British premier's visit to the U.S. is an engagement to address the annual dinner of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association in New York. But no one doubts that the Premier and the president will meet for talks.

The time for the meeting has been well chosen. It will follow the closure of the current session of the UN General Assembly, and also the first few weeks of the East-West conference on disarmament which is due to open in Geneva on March 14. It will also come just before the next meeting of the NATO foreign ministers in Athens at the beginning of May, at which nuclear arms for NATO will again be discussed.

At their last meeting, in Bermuda in December, President Kennedy and Mr. Macmillan discussed the resumption of nuclear tests in the atmosphere, following the series of massive Soviet tests in the autumn and the collapse of the Geneva talks on a nuclear test ban.

No details of their discussions have yet been revealed, and only recently Mr. Macmillan, evaded in the House of Commons an attempt by the Labor leader, Mr. Galskell, to find out whether or not Britain had committed herself to accepting and supporting new U.S. nuclear tests in the atmosphere.

But it has been generally assumed—and this was broadly confirmed by Mr. Macmillan in a television broadcast—that Britain had agreed in principle that atmospheric tests should be resumed if Russia were found to have secured a "significant" advance in military technology.

But the British made even this agreement very reluctantly. Britain is still sceptical about the military need for more tests. It also still attaches great importance to a nuclear test ban as a means of putting a brake on the arms race and stopping the spread of nuclear weapons to other countries.

Moreover, atmospheric tests mean fallout, which makes them even more unpopular with the Afro-Asian countries.

All these were arguments for postponing a decision at Bermuda about whether Britain should support the resumption of U.S. atmospheric testing, and whether she should let the Americans carry out such testing on the British possession of Christmas Island. All the evidence suggests that Mr. Macmillan asked President Kennedy to defer a decision until the spring. By that time an analysis of the Soviet test series would have been completed, and there might have been more evidence about their military usefulness.

The ending of the UN Assembly would remove a serious source of embarrassment if the Western powers decided to resume tests. There would also have been a further opportunity at the Geneva disarmament conference to seek an agreement with Russia on a controlled test ban.

The Western powers have now proposed, in response to an earlier Soviet suggestion, that the test ban talks should be taken up in the early stages of the disarmament conference.

In the U.S. those who favor the resumption of atmospheric testing are already claiming that analysis of the Soviet gains in military technology. The pressure on President Kennedy to resume tests is already mounting. There is little doubt in London that he will do so if Russia shows no sign of accepting some international controls at the Geneva disarmament talks. Mr. Macmillan may then make a final effort to persuade the president to hold back when they meet in April. But if he fails he is almost certain to acquiesce in a new nuclear tests program in order to preserve the facade of the Anglo-U.S. nuclear partnership.

In Clinics

Dream Meals

By CASSANDRA,
from London

THE world is divided into those who have enough to eat, and those who do not have enough to eat. Something like two thirds of the 2,900,000,000 of the inhabitants of this globe are on the hunger line.

Most of the rest of us don't do too badly, and there are a good many millions, especially in the United States, who do too well on the grub stakes—far too well.

For these restless victims of the over-loaded platter, there are an ever-increasing number of expensive establishments, usually called "Health Clinics," which are rather like restaurants in reverse.

The procedure goes something like this:

Breakfast

Breakfast. You say: "I don't want kippers smoked gently over oak chippings, grilled Irish bacon rather well done with shirred eggs cooked with plenty of butter in a thick iron pan, field grown mushrooms and hot buttered toast with Cooper's Oxford marmalade."

What turns up is a glass of hot water and a slice of lemon and a thin bitter grin on the face of the waiter.

Lunch

Lunchtime. You order thus: "Don't bring me two dozen Whitebait, oysters and four slices of bread and butter with poited Morecambe shrimps; a generous portion of smoked Tay salmon; turtle soup with sherry; grilled red mullet with anchovy fillets and stoned olives; baked hare stuffed with truffles, pickled pork, seal and shallots; apple snow and lemon meringue pie, walnuts, port-fred Siltton and, finally, a savory cheese omelette made with five eggs, a generous garnishment of Parmesan cheese and a cupful of clotted cream."

They bring you hot water and lemon.

Dinner

For dinner you don't have anchovy rolls with crab and lobster meat; game, puree made from pheasant, chicken's livers, lean bacon and assorted herbs; plaice Mornay; salmon of duck; Betsy pudding—and make a note to tell the chef to include the castor sugar, new-laid eggs and at least eight tablespoonsful of jam or a great dollop of heavily sweetened stewed fruit.

What, in the end, do you get?

They bring you—in inevitably—a generous cup of hot water and lemon. And if it's going to be a real hot time in the old town tonight, two courses of dried carrots and a great half-pint dagon of foaming yoghurt.

Gun-Running

Eighteen British anti-submarine planes, Fairey Canberras, are on their way to join the forces of President Sukarno of Indonesia who, with hysterical, aggressive abuse, is threatening to invade Dutch West New Guinea.

Thus we find ourselves involved in supporting a regime with strong Communist tendencies against Holland—a NATO ally and old wartime friend.

So here we go again. Three years earlier we were mixed up in another dangerous, meddling arms deal. We sold aircraft, Sea Furies, to General Batista of Cuba to use against Fidel Castro.

Surely it is time that Macmillan stopped this disreputable and cynical gun-running?

The Packsack

By GREGORY CLARK

ONE of my friends invariably refuses to allow anyone to buy his lunch for him. Even on business occasions, when being entertained, he refuses to accept dinner, but must pay for his own. He will gladly buy anyone else's lunch or dinner. But he makes it a point on all occasions to have it clear that if he is not expected to pay the tab, it must be Dutch treat.

"I," he says, "like to read a menu with a cheerful and open mind. I am fond of eating. A menu to me is a most pleasing prospect. I love to explore it all. And I am determined to choose what I like. But it has been my experience that if I am a guest, I am inhibited. I can't choose what I like. I find myself looking at the price column, with a growing uneasiness. I don't want to stick my head with the $4 dish. I select some dull item at $2.50. My meal is ruined."

Of course, there is the type who, on being invited to lunch, immediately seizes the opportunity to have the $4 dish which otherwise he would never dream of choosing.

It takes all kinds.

Vindictive

When a country the size of the U.S.A. shows such vindictiveness towards a small country—such as Cuba—and its long suffering people—it simply discloses to the whole world its unfitness to take upon itself the position of leadership.

While Mr. Rusk was able to buy or otherwise obtain the vote of a number of sycophantic members of OAS it is obvious that his role in the holy cause rather disgusted other more fair-minded members. They were, perhaps in rapport re Cuba and its courageous leader—Eh?

Twice Mentioned

Barkerville Pioneer Honored by House

Miss Lottie Bowron, former secretary to B.C. premier Sir Richard MacBride, was guest-of-honor in the legislative chamber galleries yesterday and was twice mentioned on the floor of the House.

Sir Richard was premier from 1903 to 1913.

Mrs. Lois Haggan (NDP-CUP—Grand Forks—Greenwood) mentioned how much Miss Bowron had done for Barkerville and suggested that she be named Miss Barkerville for Barkerville's centennial celebrations this year.

Old Barkerville has been restored as a historic gold rush town by the provincial recreation department and is now a major tourist attraction in British Columbia. Miss Bowron supplied many of the old photographs and other articles which made the restoration of Barkerville possible.

William Spears (SC—Carleton Place), who claimed Miss Bowron as his guest, told the House that she was born in Barkerville when it flourished as a gold centre and that her father was the first gold commissioner of the district.

Sober Up! Says Gibson

too. It is as big a mortgage on your debt," Mr. Gibson quipped back.

Mr. Gibson waved some Social Credit literature that had been sent as messages from the premier. "If stuff like this is thrown around, you will grow carrots that weigh a ton," he said.

"Spend the money as if 1 per cent of it were your own money," Mr. Gibson advised.

"I want you to slow down. If you were an alcoholic, I would know what to do with you, but on this power mania, I don't know what to do with you," he said.

"He is on a power jag," said Gordon Dowding (NDP-CUP—Burnaby).

"You need a governor," Mr. Gibson told the premier and recalled how his mother had stopped his family from going ahead on a $100,000 canner 40 years ago. "I know you are more than $99,000 short, so let's get back to washing dishes and then go to bed," Mr. Gibson recalled his mother as saying.

NEED HER NOW

"If only she could be your adviser," he told the premier.

Mr. Gibson took after Attorney General Bonner for giving talks to defend the cabinet minister's virtue and honesty.

"After 10 years in the House, he shouldn't still have to tell us," he said. "We would know. The public would like you so much better if you said you had the normal intelligence."

Mr. Gibson's family were the original owners of the Horse Bay ferries.

"Why did you buy the Black Ball Ferries? You had no right to buy it. They are nothing but junk," Mr. Gibson boomed.

"If they were losing their shirts, let them. If they were making money, let private enterprise buy it. And if you wanted to buy it, why didn't you ask (the legislature)? That is what we are here for," he said.

LOVE TO GO

"I read about it in the newspapers," Mr. Gibson complained.

"From Honolulu?" asked the premier. "We would all love to go to Honolulu."

"It would be a cheap trip for the people of B.C. too, if you would spend six months there," said Mr. Gibson.

The Liberal member was bitter about the B.C. Electric takeover, because it has not been allowed to go to the courts for adjudication on a fair takeover price.

He said he voted for the takeover because the premier was "captain of the ship" and said he would handle it "honestly, fairly, justly and no one would be hurt."

"You are not Jesus Christ in this country, or the law, because the law says people have rights," Mr. Gibson boomed. "There are people with money invested from all over the world who won't come back here without fair treatment," he warned. "You promised you would treat these people right and you have let us down. Let that go to court and see what is fair and we will pay, more or less."

The premier's spending policies came in for the brunt of the millionaire's attack.

"You have gone so far you have almost thrown us into bankruptcy. I think you have gone too far. You have thrown us into debt you have no right to. You are multiplying the debt 10-to-one and are leading us down the road to absolute suicidal bankruptcy... and your power mania is dangerous," Mr. Gibson warned.

"You should try to sober up in your financing policies," Mr. Gibson said.

ROBBIE UP! "What's that?" snapped the premier.

"Sober up," said someone in the House.

"Someone else should try that too, for a change," said the red-faced premier.

"I don't know what you are talking about," retorted Mr. Gibson.

"The public of B.C. can't stand any more debt. We have twice the debt of any other place in Canada. Our children will have to leave this country because they will never be able to pay the debt," Mr. Gibson warned.

Buy Back E & N Belt Begs MLA

An emotional appeal for the provincial government to buy all the E & N land belt land soon to be sold to logging companies was made in the legislature last night by millionaire logger Gordon Gibson (L—North Vancouver).

He said he wished the government to buy the land "and I want you to get that underground stuff. It has held back every mine development there for the last 50 years."

The E & N more than 75 years ago was granted a land tract 150 miles long from the Malahat to Forbidden Plateau, and with the grant went mineral rights. In one of his earlier reports the late Gordon Sloan suggested the government should buy back the E & N land for about $100,000,000.

Old People Victims

Funeral Plan Pedlars Accused by Woman MLA

A number of aged people in the East Kootenays have been victims of "unscrupulous" salesmen peddling pre-paid funeral plans, the legislature was told Wednesday.

Mrs. Lois Haggan (NDP-CUP—Grand Forks—Greenwood) said a funeral home at Trail which changed owners last summer sent out salesmen to the Rossland, Castlegar and Fruitvale areas.

"Their methods were unscrupulous and high pressure tactics were used," she said. "There were old people—some Doukhobors—who could not read and others who could but did not bother."

"One of the most amazing things about this whole racket is the fact that the honorable member for Rossland-Trail (Donald Brothers), or his firm, was solicitor for the funeral home, which was part of the scheme," she added.

Firearms in the hands of youngsters also came under fire from Mrs. Haggan.

"When we cannot even rely on trigger-happy adults, we should keep firearms out of the hands of young people, who cannot be expected to have as good reason," she said.

She said that when she talks about power, government members of the legislature look at her pityingly with an attitude of "she knows not of what she speaks."

She appealed for a program of as little hydro development as possible, particularly where it might harm natural resources or deface the countryside. She said she thought atom power would be ready soon and there was no need to destroy natural resources.

"If you don't want to give me credit, just put it down to a woman's intuition," she said.

More Benefits For Ex-Servants

Liberal MP Says:

Fleming Peanut Flop

OTTAWA (CP)—Liberal MP W. H. McMillan said Thursday Finance Minister

Fleming would be a flop as a peanut vendor. The comment was made as the Commons debated for the second day, the government's proposal to spend $40,000,000 this winter on its program to promote winter employment through municipal public works. The reference to the finance minister had little to do with the winter works program. Mr. McMillan, member for Welland, was instead expressing concern over what he said was a decision to have Mr. Fleming take care of the dwindling unemployment insurance fund. "From his record, I doubt the minister of finance could take over a peanut stand and keep it out of the red, even if he got the peanuts free," Mr. McMillan said.

H. W. Herridge (CCF—Kootenay West) said the winter works program "completely fails to meet the problem."

It was a palliative—"an attempt to overcome the defects of planning for profits and not for persons."

John MacLean (PC—Winnipeg North Centre) said the Commons' opposition should be giving credit to the government where credit is due. It had taken effective action. Many of the anti-unemployment steps being proposed in the U.S. already had been taken in Canada.

U.S. Trade Bill Doubt Denied by Diefenbaker

"Those statements are not in keeping with the facts," he told the Commons when questioned by Opposition leader Lester Pearson.

De Cosmos Park Studied

A suggestion that Amor De Cosmos, British Columbia's second premier, should be honored during Victoria's centennial year is under study. IDEA STUDIED Victoria historian James K. Nesbitt, chairman of a centennial subcommittee, is investigating a suggestion that city-owned land on Smith's Hill should be dedicated as a park to honor De Cosmos. "LARGELY IGNORED" The suggestion came from city resident Linn A. Gale, 1037 Craigdarroch, who said De Cosmos had been largely ignored by the generations which followed him. RESERVOIR INCLUDED De Cosmos, 1825-1897, also represented Victoria in the House of Commons for 10 years. The Smith's Hill property includes the city's Smith's Hill reservoir.

B.C. Keeps Approach To Winter Works

Municipal Affairs Minister Black indicated yesterday there will be no change in the provincial government's approach to provision of funds for winter works projects. He told reporters "winter works were designed to create new jobs," and this rule had been laid down by the federal government when it started the program. If the money is not used to create new jobs, he said, "it amounts to nothing more than a left-handed way of increasing municipal grants." He was being questioned about complaints that municipalities were able to obtain provincial funds under the winter works program only if they employed persons who were on social assistance to carry out the work involved. Some municipal councils have stated they have had to let out regular employees during winter months and could not rehire them under the winter works aid program.

A NATIONAL BUSINESS INDUSTRIAL & FINANCIAL NEWSPAPER

TWICE WEEKLY -BY AIR

The Globe and Mail is publishing a national financial newspaper to bring you complete business and financial news reports twice weekly. Published on Tuesdays and Fridays, and delivered by air across the nation to arrive on day of publication, The Globe and Mail's REPORT ON BUSINESS carries not only the news service of The Financial Times of London, but also 10 other regular news services including those of The New York Times, The Times of London, The London Observer and Dow Jones. In addition, REPORT ON BUSINESS receives reports from its own staff bureaus in Ottawa, Washington, London, Quebec City, Vancouver, United Nations Headquarters and Hong Kong; and from well-informed financial correspondents in every major city in Canada.

FOR THE FIRST TIME — a national business newspaper is being delivered coast to coast, day of publication.

Emphasis in this new publication is on news. The Globe and Mail's REPORT ON BUSINESS concentrates on the presentation of hard facts. IT IS THE BUSINESSMAN'S NEWSPAPER.

Facts are sifted, correlated, analyzed and presented in the twice-weekly REPORT ON BUSINESS in the same unbiased and non-sensational manner established by The Globe and Mail daily newspaper.

A special feature on the front page gives the day's political and general news in brief for the businessman-in-a-hurry. The greater part of each issue, which will not exceed 16 pages, is devoted to complete yet concise world-wide and financial news. Stock market quotations are given in full in every issue, and the weekly stock summary appears on Tuesdays.

New Rules for 'Skilled' Immigrants

Colored Are Eligible Now

By JOHN VENTURE

OTTAWA (UPI) — People with black, brown and yellow skins, virtually excluded from Canada in the past, will now be considered for admission as immigrants from yesterday.

Canada has been one of the leading recipients of immigrants with more than 2,000,000 arrivals since the Second World War. The overwhelming majority have been from Britain and Western Europe. According to new regulations announced Jan. 10, all persons—regardless of race, color or national origin—will be considered for immigration, provided they have an education, skill or special qualification enabling them to become established in Canada.

Previously, persons from non-white and less developed countries had to be sponsored by a close relative resident in Canada, or be admitted by special cabinet order. Neither the old nor new regulations mention color.

The number of non-whites meeting the new qualifications and being admitted is not expected to alter the traditional pattern of immigration. However, the new regulations are expected to attract some non-white professional and skilled persons who could enter Canada only with difficulty in the past.

Since the Second World War Canada has depended on immigration for many professional and skilled people, partly to offset the drain of these classes to the United States. But a recent economic slowdown in Canada and boom times in Europe caused immigration to taper off.

Immigration last year totalled 71,000, the lowest in 14 years. The number of non-whites has run about 3,000 annually, many of them Chinese from Hong Kong who entered illegally in an immigration racket which has since been broken up.

Licence Not Needed

A man who testifies in divorce proceedings can hardly be charged with operating as an unlicensed private detective, Magistrate William Ostler ruled in city police court yesterday.

CHARGE DIMINISHED

"Anyone may be called on to testify in court," said the magistrate, dismissing the charge against Robert Rathburg, 2647 Anson Place, accused of acting as a private detective without a licence.

NOT REQUIRED

The magistrate said the charge alleged Rathburg committed the offence from July 1 to Sept. 22, while employed by a licensed detective agency. While so employed, he was not required to hold an individual licence, said Mr. Ostler.

LAWYER'S TESTIMONY

Only other evidence against the accused, he said, was the testimony of a lawyer who told the court Rathburg was called by him to give evidence in a marital case in June, before the dates set out in the charge.

NO EVIDENCE

"There is no direct evidence that he (Rathburg) was acting as a private detective... in the dates set out in the charge. Giving evidence in court is not the same as furnishing evidence (as a private detective)," said the magistrate.

'Mind Training' Lags

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadians must discard outdated snobish prejudices toward schooling and jobs if the country is to catch up with the needs of an expanding economy, a prominent educationist said Thursday.

Arthur Pigott, director of the Canadian Association for Adult Education, called for a national stocktaking to mobilize Canada's manpower to its full potential.

"Elsewhere in the world there is a mustering of forces to train young minds," he said.

"Here, our attitudes, practices and philosophy are lagging seriously."

"A large part of our population hitherto has been turned out of school unfitted for a technological world."

To beat the disease of unemployment, it was urgent to revitalize an obsolete work force and to educate for future needs.

FAIRLANE
Drive it now!

ONE OF THE ROOMIEST FORDS EVER BUILT!

Lots of room for six happy people—stretch-out, spread-out room for everybody. The '62 Fairlane has one of the roomiest interiors of any Ford ever built. That goes for trunk space too. Yet the '62 Fairlane is sleek and trim on the outside. Size it up for yourself—this week—at your Ford Dealer.

POSTURE-PERFECT FRONT SEATS—they give you chair-high comfort that you'll find especially enjoyable on long trips. Foam padding has been generously applied for additional comfort, and the upholstery fabrics are luxurious and long wearing.

As the door closes, double-grip arms centre over the striker pin in a real "bear-hug" grip, locking securely into position. A rubber bushing cushions the closing action and results in a door that closes securely, easily, with the solid "thunk" of quality every single time.

SERVICE-FREE FEATURES such as 30,000 miles between chassis lubrications, 6,000 miles between oil changes and minor lubrications, 30,000 mile or 2-year radiator coolant, automatic self-adjusting brakes and corrosion-resistant underbody, bring you a new measure of economy, convenience and quality.

OTHER NEW STANDARDS OF VALUE. Besides Fairlane's big car roominess, you also enjoy big car ride with a full 115% wheelbase. Big car performance is yours, too, with an all-new Challenger V-8 engine or the economical Fairlane Six. The price is exceptionally low—far less than previous Fairlanes; and well under many compacts. Your Ford Dealer gives you a warranty for 12 months or 12,000 miles, whichever comes first.

When Royals Here

Darts, Ping Pong And Some Soccer

By JIM TAYLOR

New Westminster Royals are here for another soccer game Saturday, which means they'll be breaking out the dart board and the ping pong table in the Wally Milligan household.

It's always been that way, because there is much more than mere team rivalry at stake when Royals play United. Each meeting here means another chapter in the friendliest feud in sports—between ones who can understand their Scottish accents. And when the game ends, the fun starts. If United wins, as they did 6-1 on their last meeting, Spry is hounded all weekend. If Royals win, Milligan can find no relief from the razzing, even in his own home.

DOESN'T STOP

"It doesn't stop at soccer," Milligan says. "We have to play Royals vs United at darts and ping pong. All weekend, everything is United vs Royals."

Milligan and Jack Spry of the Royals. Milligan manages United, and Spry runs the Royals. They've been fast friends since they came here from the old country in 1948, and played together for Royals in their first season.

When Spry brings his team here, he spends the weekend at the Milligans. Some say it's because the two are the only

South Africa Color Bar Olympics Threat?

Japanese Swimmers Can't Use Pool

PRETORIA (Reuters)—Pretoria's ban on a Japanese swimming team using its city pool has raised questions about South Africa's participation in the 1964 Olympic games in Tokyo. Neville Grace, president of South African Swimming Union, said Thursday.

Grace said the "type of attitude implicit in the Pretoria order may result in facilities being withdrawn from South Africans overseas," including the Olympic games. He said the ban, imposed last week, was "unprecedented in South African sporting history."

In Tokyo, the managing director of the Japanese Swimming Association, Hiroshi Negami, said the Japanese team would follow the instructions of its hosts and would never officially be declared "white" by the South African government.

Grace said that if Pretoria does not withdraw the ban, it will be removed from the list of sites to be visited by other overseas swimmers, including U.S., Australian, British and European teams.

City official W. J. Seymour told the Pretoria News-Times that the city would stick to the ban because Japanese had been officially declared "white" by the South African government.

Czechs Want Hockey Meet

PRAGUE (AP)—Czech officials formally protested Thursday what they called "political discrimination" against East Germany and offered to hold the world ice hockey championships in Czechoslovakia in place of Colorado Springs. This was reported by CTX, the official Czech news agency.

Both the protest and the offer were contained in telegrams sent by the Czechoslovak Central Ice Hockey Section to Robert Lebel of Montreal, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation (IIHF), and to J. F. (Bunny) Ahearne, of London, the vice-president.

The 1962 championships are scheduled for Colorado Springs, March 7-18. Because of the crisis in Berlin over the building of the wall by the Communists, the Allied travel office in West Berlin has refused to give East Germans travel permits. This is part of a general NATO ban.

"It's too late to shift it to another country," said Walter Brown in New York. Brown, of Boston, is a vice-president of the Amateur Hockey Association of the United States. "It takes a year to organize this kind of a tournament."

The club trains after school Monday and Fridays and Saturday afternoons under coaches Ira Lefebvre, Art Burgess and Rick Dudman.

United will stick with the same lineup that beat Columbus 5-0 last Saturday—Barry Sadler in goal, Len Anderson and Ron Jensen at fullback, George Wright, Mars and Harold Holroyd on the half line, and Henri Vanderhorst, George Paul, Geoff Hill, Volker Stoldt and Tommy Major up front.

Stolen Safe Found By Duncan Couple

DUNCAN — Searching for wood for their fireplace, Mr. and Mrs. Hamish Gibson of Somers Road yesterday found a safe stolen last Sunday from Bruce's Red and White Store.

"We were walking up Mount Prevost road about two miles off Somers Road when we saw the safe down in a gully," Mr. Gibson said last night.

"My wife mentioned to me it was probably the safe left there after the robbery," he explained.

FOUND PAPERS

To make sure Mr. Gibson climbed down and found papers belonging to store operator Preston Bruce, rushing back to Duncan and returning with Mr. Bruce and police officers the latter also found the missing truck from Duncan Motors on another side road only some 100 yards away from the safe.

NO DAMAGE

"There didn't seem to be any damage to the truck," Mr. Gibson stated. Happy to have his papers back Mr. Bruce said last night, "they didn't blow the safe but we found a dynamite stick nearby."

papers. The $2,000 loss is covered by insurance.

"We have worked for four days to straighten out the accounts which had been in the ledger book in the safe," Mr. Bruce said. "Our customers have been great in helping me," he added. Police said safe and truck have been safely returned to Duncan.

High-Level Arbitration Appeal Serves No Purpose, Says IWA

DUNCAN — A letter to Labor Minister Leslie Peterson from Lake Cowichan Merchants' Association asking the minister to bring IWA and Hillcrest Lumber Co. together to settle a month-old dispute over company transportation will not serve a useful purpose, said Local 180 IWA president Weldon Jubberville yesterday.

"I feel," the president said, "the merchants should have put pressure on Hillcrest instead, for the solution to this problem is entirely in the hands of the company."

He added the transportation provided for 70 loggers from Duncan and Lake Cowichan areas was "definitely" a term of employment promised to employees as late as last fall shortly before the company announced cancellation of first transportation in 1962.

Several merchants at the Cowichan Lake logging community are fully behind the letter to Mr. Peterson. As one of the storekeepers explained, "It is his job to look into this."

an arbitration board to settle the dispute fairly, he said. Another merchant from the lake pointed out not only his community will suffer from the dispute but Duncan as well. He believed the emergency pay letting loggers receive from a fund is "just enough to exist" but not sufficient to meet financial obligations.

Club Plans Big Fete

COURTENAY — Comox Valley Riding Club plans to open the summer centennial celebrations here with a rodeo and western dance, and—with the help of local Indians—a beef barbecue.

Plans also include making a park area on the Tokeham River bank.

New Hotel Owner To Build Marina

NANAIMO—New owner of the Malaspina Hotel in Nanaimo plans to put marina facilities at the rear of the hotel by the harbor.

Kelith Sheppard, general manager of Elgin Investments Limited of Vancouver, said the marina development would be one of several improvements and additions to the Malaspina.

NOT DISCLOSED

Sale of the hotel by owner-manager Ray Knight was announced at a press conference yesterday. Price was not disclosed.

Mr. Sheppard said popular recreational facilities are also planned for the hotel.

PLEASURE TRIP

Walter Sheppard, former manager of a Duncan hotel, will become new manager of the Malaspina.

Mr. Knight will go on an extended pleasure trip.

School Probe Today

PENDER HARBOR, B.C. (CP)—An investigation of the half-day strike of 41 junior-senior high school pupils here will be held today by Sechart district school superintendent Gordon Johnson.

The pupils, a third of the 122 enrolment in the school at this community 40 miles north of Vancouver, refused to return Wednesday afternoon following the noon strapping of 17-year-old Grade 11 student Ronald Fenn.

All, including the strapping boy, returned to school Thursday morning.

Fenn was strapped by social studies teacher William Ashworth on the orders of principal Roth Gordon after he refused to leave the classroom, as ordered, and eat his lunch alone in the library.

The principal said the boy was being isolated, with two others, because they had been terrorizing a younger student with belts and a knife.

Hearing Set In Slaying

HOPE (CP) — Gerald R. Emery, 18, charged with capital murder in the axe-slaying of his father on the Yale Indian reservation, was remanded Thursday for a preliminary hearing in Chilliwack Feb. 12.

Hope RCMP said they believed the slaying of Francis George Emery, 54, followed a family argument in the home of Chief Peter Emery, father of the victim, Wednesday

Co-Existence 'Soviet Hoax'

TORONTO (UPI)—U.S. ambassador to Canada Livingston Merchant said yesterday "genuine peaceful co-existence" could come in 10 to 20 years if the West remained aware of the Communist threat and firm in its resolve to meet it.

Addressing an Empire Club luncheon, Merchant said the peaceful co-existence talked about by Russians today was nothing but a hoax.

He warned that Premier Khrushchev's threat to the west "we will bury you" was not an idle boast.

"Russian foreign policy was still bound to the Lenin revolutionary aim of destroying parliamentary governments in the rest of the world, he said.

It would be as dangerous for the West to ignore these utterances as it was when Hitler's frank discussion of his Mein Kampf aims were dismissed as radical ramblings, Merchant said.

Technical knowledge in the world was approaching the stage where poverty and disease would be eliminated if the Russian-Chinese Communist roadblock was not holding up common worldwide progress toward this goal, he added.

If the West followed the proper procedure, there was hope for genuine co-existence in which all nations recognize the sovereignty of others, the ambassador said. Collective defense must be kept manned and modern, he said, to avoid risk of war by miscalculation.

Straying Cattle Cost Fine

Roving cattle which strayed too far afield brought two men into Saanich court yesterday. Henry Chung, 350 Island Highway, was fined $25 for allowing his herd of 14 head to break through the fence into a neighbor's yard.

Lorne McNutt, 1410 Alan, pleaded not guilty to a charge of allowing cattle to trespass. He was remanded to Feb. 8 for trial.

Pipeline Stalled By Debts?

VANCOUVER (CP)—The B.C. government is reported considering refusing an operating certificate for a new pipeline in the Fort St. John area until businessmen in the area are paid $220,000 in debts left by the pipeline contractor.

Transport Minister Westwood would not confirm the report but said no certificate has yet been issued.

The government, he said, is interested in seeing that the pipeline company explores all aspects of the contractor's debts and that the small-businessmen and wage earners in the area "get the money owing them."

Pioneer Pipe Line Contractors Ltd. of Calgary ran up $220,000 in debts in Fort St. John and Dawson Creek as it worked on a $1,100,000 pipeline from Blueberry at Mile 101 on the Alaska Highway to Taylor Flats, 10 miles south of Fort St. John.

A-Shelter Considered In Oak Bay

A $13,500 blast-proof shelter to accommodate key civil defence officials was considered Wednesday at a meeting of the Oak Bay Civil Defence Committee and will be discussed further.

Geoffrey White, municipal engineer and CD co-ordinator, said the shelter could be built into the foundation of the planned new public works building.

Majority of the cost would probably be taken by the provincial and federal governments, he said.

The committee also recommended purchase of $1,150 standby generator for the proposed CD headquarters.

A budget of $5,915 for 1962 was approved in principle.

Garden Notes

The Turf Nursery

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

One job I am anxious to get cracking on is a spot of repair work on the lawn. This is one of those chores which so often gets pushed into the background in the real rush of spring sowing and planting. Then the lawn goes into the summer with a hand-dog air and a moth-eaten appearance, so if we should get a reasonably dry spell this weekend—and my fingers are crossed as I write this—I plan to make a start at some patching.

We have one out-of-the-way corner in our backyard that doesn't get much in the way of traffic, and of recent years I have been using this bit as a sort of turf nursery.

When we get a bad patch out front, I cut and lift a section of sod from the backyard, wheel it around to the front and use it to replace the worn or bare bit. The denuded section of the back lawn gets a little fresh soil with a sprinkle of fertilizer, plus a handful of grass seed, and is covered with a few old tree branches to discourage trespassers. Pretty soon, my little sod nursery is back in business.

When I cut and lift the worn turf from the bad patch in the front lawn, I always make some effort to find out what caused the trouble and put it right. Abnormal winter traffic is a frequent source of trouble—the milkman or the newsboy taking illicit shortcuts while frost is on the grass, for instance.

More often something is wrong with the soil at that particular spot. If grubs or pupae of any kind are found, better work in a dressing of aldrin or chlordane dust before the new sod is laid. Probe around a bit with a crowbar, too, to see if sheet metal or other builder's rubbish is buried beneath, for this is a very common cause of spotty lawns in a new home.

It is always a good idea to take out an inch or so of the old soil and replace it with fresh stuff from some other part of the garden, but use this replacement soil "as is," without attempting to enrich it with manure or fertilizer. Too generous treatment would cause the repaired patch to green-up and grow like crazy and it would stand out like a sore thumb in contrast to the rest of the lawn.

It is the height of foolishness to try to reduce a hummock or high spot in the lawn by rolling or beating it, for this will only consolidate the soil to the point where the grass roots wouldn't get any air nor water.

Instead, cut and lay back the sod over the high spot, take out enough soil to make level and replace the turf.

Low spots can be brought up to the surrounding level over a period of time by dressing the surface with a thin layer of rich soil, never more than a half-inch layer at any one time. Allow the grass to grow up through this and become established at the new level before adding any more. This takes a lot of time; personally, I would sooner lift the sod, add soil to the desired level and replace the turf.

It is difficult to do much about poor drainage in an established lawn—any drainage troubles should have been corrected before the lawn was put down. Frequently, this work is skipped and you have sections where puddles lie all winter and where moss is moving in while the grass is moving out.

Occasionally, and in some types of soil, I have seen a dramatic improvement effected in a poorly-drained spot simply by lifting a square of turf, digging a deep hole—18 inches or deeper—and filling it to within six inches of the top with gravel or coarse cinders. Add soil to bring it up to the surrounding level and replace the sod.

'Real Idiots' Make General

KITCHENER (CP) — "Really clever American youths go into business and become vice-presidents or corporate lawyers," Prof. C. Northcote Parkinson said Wednesday night.

"Stupid ones go into the civil service. The real idiots go into the army and they all become generals. The best example of that occurred not long ago when one became president."

Prof. Parkinson, British lecturer, historian, author and discoverer of Parkinson's Law—the law and the book carry the same title—spoke here to the Canadian Industrial Management Association.

Parkinson's Law, first mentioned when he was lecturing in Malaya in 1955, is: "Work expands to fill time available for its completion." The law later became a book.

PROF. PARKINSON

Taking a crack at business, he said: "As soon as you have 1,000 executives in a company you have administrative self-sufficiency. They can keep themselves fully occupied with inter-office memos and never bother with the business at all."

If a person arrives at the top of a business and wants to stay there, Prof. Parkinson advised: "Call meetings for 3.13 p.m. or 11.11 a.m. People will turn up marveling at the fantastically tight schedule you have."

He said "bumbling executives" whose decisions are always wrong are "invaluable—they are a compass pointing south."

"The decisions of these men should be sought because they eliminate one possibility."

Hunting for His Heart?

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Hugh O'Brian flies to Europe Feb. 12 for a bit of sking... can ex-queen Soraya be far behind. Their romance flourished in the snows of St. Moritz and Gstaad last season, when Hugh not only broke his heart, but fractured his leg.

Andy Griffith has already had his option picked up for next season. "I'd like to be on TV for five years," says Andy. "Then do two feature films a year."

Patrice Wymore will make a musical film aboard late husband Errol Flynn's yacht, the Zaca. That's toiling the pleasant way.

Cornel Wilde had to leave his dog in quarantine for six months when arriving in England. But they allowed his parrot to pass. Cornel will produce several movies in Europe.

When Rosalind Russell suffers from insomnia, which is often, she gets up and roams around the streets in Beverly Hills. The police have orders not to pick her up. The police usually stop late-night pedestrians to ask why they are walking around.

Regardless of Pier Angeli's announcement she will marry Italian musician Armando Trovajoli, I don't think she will be able to—unless they plan to live away from Italy, where Pier is still considered married to Vito Damone.

When you see Ingrid Bergman strolling with 23-year-old daughter Jenny Ann in the streets of Rome, it's hard to tell which is the mother. They're about the same height.

The Audrey Hepburn-Shirley MacLaine-James Garner starrer "The Children's Hour" has been doing somewhat better since the new happier ending has been substituted for the movie.

The trouble behind getting "The L-Shaped Room" into production stems from producer Jimmy Woolf's belief that Leslie Caron is not a box-office favorite. It's a tremendous role—an unwed mother—and he would rather have someone like Susanah York playing it with Larry Harvey. Warners preferred Miss Caron. It's true the piquant French actress is not a favorite in Europe.

Joan Collins, often a "date" but not again a bride, would like to try Broadway—with Jane Fonda and Brad Pittman, in "The Fun Couple."

British comedian Peter Sellers is walking into the next world. He is a believer in spiritualism and attends seances to contact friends who have passed on.

Dennis Weaver's new $200,000 home in Royal Oaks is right across from Julie London's home. Dennis is putting in a tennis court as well as a pool. Gunsmoke has been good to its stars.

HAMILTON (CP)—Atomic physics, a la Dr. J. Robert Oppenheimer, is proving a big drawing card in Hamilton.

Dr. Oppenheimer, who helped develop the atomic bomb, lectured to some 1,800 persons Tuesday on the rela-tivity of time and space and it was believed the subject was over the heads of his audience.

But Wednesday night he gave the second part of the lecture to a crowd of the same size, made up of scientists, school teachers, university students and other interested people.

After the first lecture in the McMaster University Whidden lecture series, university officials said they couldn't understand why the scientist chose so technical a subject for a public lecture. Wednesday night, Dr. E. P. Salmon, principal of McMaster, urged the audience to attend tonight's final lecture.

He said: "As the heroine was about to be murdered or killed, they turned off the picture and told you to return for the thrilling climax."

Dr. Oppenheimer in the second lecture dealt with the phenomenon of the passage of light waves through the universe's gravitation fields.

He said, among other things, that the phenomenon disproves the Pythagorean theorem:

"Here it can be shown that the square of the hypotenuse of a right-angled triangle does not equal the sum of the squares of the other two sides..."

Syndicate Plans Waterfront 'City'

TORONTO (UPI) — A $150,000,000 waterfront "city" was proposed yesterday to the Toronto Harbour Commission.

Envisioned is a business and residential complex including a 3,000-suite apartment block, a 1,000-room hotel, a marina, a ferry dock, curling, skating and bowling facilities, a library and a museum.

Plans call for use of 40 acres of land at the base and west of downtown Yonge Street, including the present dock area.

The developers of the project, to be known as York Centre, described themselves as "a group of Canadians drawn from representative institutions in Toronto."

Originator of the proposal is Sinclair McKnight Stevens, a barrister and president of British International Finance Limited and several other companies.

The group represents holdings upwards of $900,000,000, a spokesman said.

Pay Phones Illegal, Too Says Blue Law Victim

CALGARY (CP) — If he can't run his coin-operated laundry on Sundays, Calgary's Dave Ho Lem suggests pay telephones are illegal, too.

Mr. Ho Lem's Carousell Cleaners Limited has been charged with violating the Lord's Day Act in the latest round of a controversy over Sunday operations.

"If it is illegal for Calgarians to use coin-operated cleaning machines on Sunday, it is equally illegal to use pay telephones," he said.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are in our middle 40s. We've always wanted children but were never blessed. A few years ago we made the rounds of adoption agencies but were told that we were "too old."

My niece is 37 and pregnant. There is no husband in sight. We have offered to pay her living expenses in another city plus the medical bills in exchange for her baby. She is willing and so are her parents. Our clergyman is a rock-headed conservative who is strongly opposed to the idea. He said "Write to Ann Landers. She'll give it to you straight between the eyes. So??" — WAITING

Dear Waiting: I'm not in favor of adoption by relatives unless both parents are deceased. A pregnant girl "with no husband in sight" is likely to be panicky and would agree to anything. She could change her mind when the baby is a few months (or years) old and cause you plenty of trouble. It is always a risky situation when the mother knows the whereabouts of her child. You could be forever at the mercy of a neurotic woman. Don't do it.

Dear Ann Landers: Over the Christmas holidays I had an out-of-town guest. She is a cute girl, 17 years old, and I had no trouble getting her dates. In fact, every fellow who saw her wanted to take her out.

During Easter vacation I'm going to have another 17-year-old guest, my father's daughter by his first marriage. I'll call her Linda. What a spook! She's taller than most fellows and she weighs more too. If she had a pleasant personality it would help but she's a real dullsville.

My mother says I can't go out during Easter vacation unless Linda has a date, too. If I sized her up with any of the fellows in our crowd it would be the end of our friendship. What can I do? — EASTER AGONY.

Dear Agony: Here's a compromise: Give a party—open-house affair. Invite all likely (or unlikely) prospects. After the fellows meet Linda it's up to them to ask her for a date if they are interested.

If no one crashes through I see no reason why you should sit at home with her every evening. Of course you shouldn't go out every night and leave her. If you split it down the middle your mother should be satisfied.

Dear Ann Landers: I'd like to reply to "Idiot Wife" since that letter could have been written by me 15 years ago. I, too, married an attractive, intelligent man and everyone wondered how I got so lucky. I always felt inferior to him.

Mannequins' Shape Change Like Autos'

TORONTO (CP) — Styles in female bodies change from year to year, says Angelo Soriano.

Mr. Soriano, a manufacturer of mannequins, says: "We change the bodies every year—like automobiles. Real women don't change shape that fast, but you'd be surprised at how they do change."

His models are designed to Canadian taste, which means bigger busts and shorter waists and legs than the American model, though all the faces are sculptured in the United States.

But for sportswear, slim European types are preferred. "They're scrawny," snorted Julie Mele, office manager for the firm.

The popular measurement is 36-24-36, though the firm once made 30 Jayne Mansfield 40-21-36 models for a dress shop here. They caused a stir until the store burned down.

Curried Liver, Taj Mahal Style

Here's a wonderful way to serve that oft neglected meat, liver. Dress it up with a smooth evaporated milk sauce, spice it with curry, and serve in an elegant dish, along with hot buttered rice. Even the "liver-loathers" at your house will be hard put to recognize it, in this easy-to-fix, delicious disguise!

Alcock Family

Peace Is a Family Affair That Fills Their Lives

A new life on a different standard for the Alcock family.

When he arrived home one of his sons said: "It's all right having this standard of living but you don't need to talk about it."

When Dr. Alcock decided to take three months off to do some thinking and reading, his wife readily concurred. When he extended it another three months and then another six months she still agreed.

During that time Dr. Alcock wrote a booklet, The Bridge of Reason, in which he laid out a blueprint for peace research institutes which would bring scientific thinking to bear on the problems of banishing war.

That was 2½ years ago and the Alcocks have been making do without a regular salary ever since. Mrs. Alcock hopes her husband will begin within the next six months to receive a regular salary through his work with the Canadian Peace Research Institute. In the meantime they have been "getting along with the help of friends."

NO CREAM
Economizing has meant giving up big and little things. They no longer buy the cream Dr. Alcock likes for his morning porridge. They have given up trips and cut their clothing budget.

Sometimes it has meant borrowing money to buy groceries or letting bills slide for a few weeks.

The couple met in 1946 when Pat was a secretary with the National Research Council at Chalk River, Ont. They were married in 1948.

After moving to Toronto where her husband was director of engineering with Canadian Curtiss-Wright, they built a 12-room house in nearby Oakville.

This proved to be a provident move. "We had made the upstairs very soundproof so we wouldn't hear the children." When they decided to rent part of the house, the apartment was made in the soundproof area.

Mrs. Alcock has been involved with the search for peace even longer than her husband. She is vice-president of Voice of Women, an organization that now backs the idea of peace research institutes.

When you add an extra egg to your cooking, you are adding a dividend of good nutrition. It gives a bonus of valuable protein, vitamins and minerals plus good flavor.

On television Dr. Alcock ventured the opinion that the children were benefiting.

Curried Liver

A New Way to Serve An Oft-Ignored Meat

Liver is one of our fine foods that gets on so neglected, often because mothers wish they knew of a nice masquerading way to serve it to their liver-loathing families. If this is your problem, you'll indeed be interested in this recipe for Curried Liver, a dish so amazingly good that when it was put before a taste panel, even liver-haters gave it rave reviews.

Evaporated milk gives the sauce a characteristic smoothness, and the amount of curry powder has been made variable, in order to please all tastes.

Never has liver tasted quite so marvelous, we think, as in this dish, where well-seasoned strips of liver are cooked in butter until lightly browned, along with mushrooms and onion, then sauced up smoothly, courtesy of evaporated milk, before being given that curry finish. Served on hot buttered rice or noodles, here's nutritious dining, with a capital D.

CURRIED LIVER
(Makes 4 to 6 Servings)
Three tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, few grains nutmeg, 1 pound liver, cut in thin strips, ½ cup butter, 1 onion, finely chopped, 1 (10-ounce) can sliced mushrooms, 2 to 3 teaspoons curry powder, 1½ cups (1 large can) evaporated milk, ½ cup mushroom liquid.

Combine in a paper bag, the flour, salt, pepper and nutmeg. Add liver, close top of bag and shake well in coat liver. Melt butter in frying pan; add onion and fry until tender, but not browned. Drain mushrooms, reserving liquid. Add mushrooms to onion and fry lightly. Stir in curry powder. Add liver and fry until browned. Gradually stir in evaporated milk, then mushroom liquid. Cook gently until heated through. Serve over hot buttered rice or noodles.

A Weird Mob?

Rough, Tough, Fortright Australians Speech Topic

"The traveller arriving in Australia will discover that there are approximately 3,000,000 square miles of land, 10,000,000 people, 150,000,000 sheep, 750,000,000 rabbits, 750,000 civil servants and no domestic servants."

Thus began an interesting and often amusing talk by Prof. Geoffrey O. B. Davies, professor of history and international studies and executive assistant to the president at University of British Columbia. He spoke yesterday afternoon to Women's Canadian Club on "Australians — A Weird Mob?"

Prof. Davies said the title was that of a book which was allegedly written by an Italian immigrant to Australia, but really written by an Irish settler in Australia.

He verbally sketched Australia, the sort of country it is and the sort of people who inhabit it. He gave details of an expanding economic and industrial country and of its people, including the various groups that have made Australia a "melting pot" of nationalities, resulting in a tough, rough, intensely practical, "weird mob," who "like to call a spade a spade."

THINK BIG

"They are a people who think in large terms, and Prof. Davies exemplified this with the story of the Australian who, upon hearing a Texan brag about the size of a Texas kangaroo, said the animal was merely an Australian grass-hopper."

As to the Australians' roots, he pointed out that the early settlers were British, "who arrived under personal supervision of the crown."

He described today's Australians as exceptional people in the fields of the arts and outdoor sports.

"They are passionately devoted to competitive sport," he said, "and to the king of all sports, racing."

"It has been said that Australia's coat of arms should be a race horse rampant on a field of bookmakers' tickets."

He noted that Australia has a bold immigration policy, and one of the highest birth rates in the world. "Populate or Perish" seems to be their slogan.

The geographical isolation of Australia has had a profound effect on their politics. Prof. Davies pointed out. He said that they look nervously at Asia, and like Canada, they feel conflicting pulls of geography and history, but have re-emphasized ties with the western world and there is no doubt of a firm attachment to the Commonwealth.

EFFECT OF WAR

The speaker said that the end of the Second World War left Australia a more mature nation which has moved slowly to a recognition of responsibility in Asia. Prime Minister Menzies, 100 percent British, as shown by his firm stand along with Britain on the Suez question, has, however, recognized the growing significance of the Colombo Plan and has Left, this toffee brown Donegal tweed suit from Dublin designer Irene Gilbert's 1962 spring collection has a jacket with gentle fullness achieved by curved band inset at the waist to control the gathers above and below. Easy fullness in skirt front follows the line of the jacket. Model wears a gondolier hat of burnt straw.

Right, high-spot of Dublin designer Neill Mulcahy's 1962 spring collection is her bullfighter-red velvet cape, collared and cuffed in black seal, with exotic looped braid buttons on side closing. The cape is lined throughout in black faille. "It is very feminine and goes with every type of outfit," says Miss Mulcahy. "It is dramatic for evening and the only thing you can wear that won't disturb the top of an evening dress, no matter how complicated. For day wear it gives a suit that all-the-year-round quality that a matching topcoat never can."

Oak Bay, Esquimalt

Metro Statement

This is the joint policy statement by Oak Bay and Esquimalt councils on amalgamation, metro government and metro services.

The current drive by the mayor of Victoria and the reeve of Saanich to force Oak Bay and Esquimalt into a formal study of metro-government under the provisions of the Municipal Act has in result forced our two councils to meet together to discuss the whole matter. As a result of this discussion we have unanimously agreed upon a joint policy as hereinafter set forth.

The background of the current controversy is unfortunate. After much propaganda, but no facts or concrete arguments, the mayor of Victoria and the reeve of Saanich made a request at the intermunicipal committee meeting Jan. 23 that Oak Bay and Esquimalt join Victoria and Esquimalt in a formal study of metro-government under section 766 of the Municipal Act to study metro-government for the Greater Victoria area, and they expressed the hope that if such committee considered total amalgamation more desirable it would so recommend.

The representatives of Oak Bay and Esquimalt, stated that they would not recommend such a course of action to their councils but would recommend agreement to an informal study of the whole problem by the intermunicipal committee. The committee resolved to refer the matter to each council for their opinion, the result of which would be brought up at the next meeting of the intermunicipal committee.

Instead, Victoria council voted to request a formal study without the courtesy of referring the matter back to the intermunicipal committee, and the reeve of Saanich has stated a similar intention. It is regrettable that Victoria and Saanich should act with such lack of courtesy. Our reason for not wishing a formal study under the terms of the Municipal Act is obvious. If the majority of such a joint study committee recommended a metro form of government, a referendum would be put to the electors in each municipality.

If the referendum received a majority vote in two-thirds of the municipalities, the minister could impose a metro-government on all of the municipalities.

Thus, if the electors in one municipality voted 100 per cent against metro it could still be imposed on them. Surely it would be a complete breach of duty on the part of our councils to allow such an undemocratic step to be taken.

We in the Oak Bay and Esquimalt councils are ready and willing to have and have, in fact, publicly offered to discuss any reasonable proposal for intermunicipal co-operation around the conference table of the intermunicipal committee, a body already in existence for such discussions.

We welcome the attendance of the press to report such discussions, but we do not consider that the one-sided attitude of Victoria and Saanich will do anything but widen the gap between ourselves and those municipalities and we express the hope that they will accept our offer to sit down and discuss these matters in a reasonable and informal fashion.

In anticipation of such discussions on these matters, we consider it only fair to make known to Victoria and Saanich the following:

(1) That at the present time our councils are firmly and honestly of the opinion that amalgamation is not in the interest of Oak Bay or Esquimalt.

(2) That at the present time we see no merit in metro-government and consider it merely a further burden on the taxpayers.

(3) That we believe that the mayor of Victoria and the reeve of Saanich should place

Bally Colanist, Victoria, 27 Friday, Feb. 2, 1962

Eclipse Not Visible

A total eclipse of the sun Monday will happen so late in the day it probably won't be noticeable in Victoria, an astronomer said yesterday.

The sky will get dark earlier when the moon passes between the sun and earth on that day but at best local residents will be able to see only the start of the eclipse.

(4) That we will not discuss metro-government under the terms of the Municipal Act for the reasons herebefore given, but will, as previously stated, discuss it and amalgamation in the intermunicipal committee without any strings attached. After such a study we will gladly put the matter to our own ratepayers in the form of a referendum for our guidance so that we may learn if our voters favor either proposal.

(5) That we do not believe that any saving in cost or any increase in efficiency will result from metro police and fire services which we have as excellent.

(6) That we believe that if Victoria and Saanich desire to amalgamate or form a metro-government they can do so without Oak Bay or Esquimalt, the presence of which is required geographically or on any other ground.

(7) That we consider that our ratepayers have paid long and heavily for those services which they now enjoy and that there is no equity in asking them to pay for the services desired by others.

We have now made our offer to Victoria and Saanich to deal with these matters in what we consider to be a reasonable and proper fashion. Should our offer be refused we will consider it necessary in carrying out our duties as councillors in our respective municipalities to take whatever action may be necessary to protect the democratic rights of our ratepayers. We sincerely trust that this will not be necessary.

City Frowns On $4,000 Gallery Bid

City finance committee yesterday was cool toward a request the city give a $4,000 grant to the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

Request was made by Hugh Stephen, president of the art gallery board supported by gallery curator Colin Graham.

Mr. Stephen asked the finance committee to increase his annual grant from the $2,960 given last year to $4,000. He said the gallery's 1962 budget was $27,000.

Finance committee referred the request to the Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee.

Cuba

Rusk Asks Help

Will Canada Play Ball?

WASHINGTON (CP)—State Secretary Dean Rusk virtually invited Canada and other countries to join with the U.S. and a majority of Latin American countries in isolating Cuba from the rest of the western hemisphere.

Rusk said Thursday on his return from the Punta del Este conference that the U.S. intends to do all it can to block the flow of Soviet-type arms from Cuba to other Latin American countries.

PROMOTE SUBVERSION

Rusk also said U.S. intelligence has discovered that Premier Castro of Cuba is using dollars and other foreign exchange to promote Communist subversion in neighboring countries.

A Canadian correspondent, then asked: "Mr. Secretary, on that point... to what extent would all the resolutions accepted at the Punta del Este conference be effective without the active participation by Canada?"

SUGGESTS ALIGNMENT

Rusk answered: "Well, of course, we do hope that other countries, having seen the clear expressions of policy and attitude of the Organization of American States, would consider—and I am not referring to any single country—would consider whether they might align their policies with the policies of the inter-American system."

Infuriating Princess More Fun, Anyway

LONDON (CP)—A woman reporter springs to the defence of Princess Margaret.

Anne Sharpley, who has covered numerous royal tours, takes note of recent criticisms of Margaret, acknowledges that the Queen's sister is sometimes a little difficult, but sums up:

"Well... she's a princess. What else do we really expect? Don't go get a private kick from having a full-blooded, contrary, infuriating princess? Isn't she more fun than a line-toting, snarling-to-please princess?"

A perilous two-day adventure aboard this 16-foot outboard bobbing at the mercy of the tide in Juan de Fuca Strait ended yesterday when two runaway boys were rescued near Whidbey Island.

Strait ended yesterday when two runaway boys were rescued near Whidbey Island.

Runaways Found Adrift

By JACK FREY

Two runaway boys from Victoria who drifted powerlessly for two days in Juan de Fuca Strait in a boat taken from the Oak Bay boathouse were rescued yesterday by an American fisherman.

The youths, 13 and 14 years of age, ran away Tuesday night from the Carey Road foster home. A 16-foot outboard motorboat owned by Herbert Shaw, 1856 Monteleith, was taken from the boathouse the same evening.

Two Days In Boat

The boys will be returned to Victoria today. They were kept overnight at the Clallam County juvenile home.

Washington State police said the boys turned themselves in yesterday afternoon and that they admitted they took the boat because they "wanted to see the world." Fisherman Tom Phillips, 36, of Port Angeles, told the Colonial last night he came upon the stranded boys about 2 p.m. in a dense fog at Hein's Bank near Whidbey Island.

He cut short his fishing trip to take them back to Port Angeles where they said they lived. He said he fed them hot chocolate, tinned peaches and crackers and took their outboard in tow behind his 42-foot trawler Sirobasen.

The $2,200 boat, powered by twin 10-horsepower outboard motors, was undamaged, said the fisherman. And the two boys were wearing life jackets when he found them.

Phillips said the boys told him they hadn't eaten in more than two days and that they had been drifting with the tide since about 9 a.m. Tuesday when they ran out of gas.

Hydro Strikes Banned

Employees of the new provincial hydro-electric authority will be given full collective bargaining rights, but they will not have the right to strike, Labor Minister Peterson said yesterday.

Instead of the strike and lockout provisions accorded other trade unions and private employers, the hydro authority and its employees will be subject to binding arbitration procedures in cases of disputes.

Mr. Peterson made the statements in the legislature as he outlined the government's approach to the trade union problem involved in its takeover of the B.C. Electric Co. and the subsequent merging of the B.C. Electric with the B.C. Power Commission, a move forecast in the Speech from the Throne.

FUNDAMENTAL RIGHT In Victoria, labor council secretary Alf Toone wasn't impressed.

"For the minister to say workers will have all the bargaining rights but the right to strike is to say they have been given fringe concessions but were denied their most fundamental right."

"I believe that as a last resort, an employee must be allowed the right to withdraw his services from an employer. The fact that the government is the employer doesn't alter the question."

But in Vancouver, the Electrical Workers' Union and the Office Employees' Union welcomed the government's announcement as a constructive

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—The trouble with John Glenn Jr.'s Atlas booster rocket is expected to be corrected by Saturday and checks will start then aimed at launching him into earth orbit Feb. 13, officials said.

The space agency reported officially that the problem was a leak in the Atlas fuel tank. It was discovered as the big rocket was being fueled last Tuesday in preparation for a launching this week.

Comic Opera

Gibson Scores Spending Power 'Mania'

By ALEC MERRIMAN

The government was lectured for more than an hour last night by millionaire Gordon Gibson (L—North Vancouver).

And his speech was both funny and serious — often stormy, but sometimes quiet — had the House and public galleries in gusts of laughter and at times the premier and government members squirming in their seats.

It was a funnier show than many comic operas, but through all the speech there was a sting. Often his address was aimed at the premier instead of to the Speaker.

PREPARING PLACE

Mr. Gibson said he had been in Hawaii for three months (he has interests there) and that he didn't go there for selfish reasons.

"I have been there preparing a place for you. I don't believe in capital punishment for political prisoners. I would rather throw them in exile," he said.

"I built 12 lovely cottages. It's a lovely place... palm trees... And I haven't told them a word about Social Credit, so you will be very welcome," he said.

But, he warned the premier, if he goes on spending money like he is, he won't even have the one-way fare to Hawaii.

PUT ON RABBIT

"I would like you to have all your books and everything ready. I would like them put on a barge like you had at Kelowna and after the next election everything can go up."

"Will your yacht be included?" laughed the premier. "I would like to get rid of it."

Socialists Attack 'Huge Profits' Of Oil Magnate

Made $11,000,000
'For Signature'

By PETER BRUTON

The NDP-CCF opposition launched a massive frontal attack on oil magnate Frank McMahon yesterday and demanded that the government resign for not protecting the public against the oilman's "stock-profiteering."

Alex Macdonald (NDP-CCF—Vancouver East) charged that Westcoast Transmission made $11,000,000 simply by signing an agreement with the Social Credit government to build a crude oil pipeline from Fort St. John south to Kamloops.

"This scandal is far worse than the scandal that rocked the Liberal government out of Ottawa in 1957," it was charged.

The motion that the government resign was defeated 32 to 14 with the four-man Liberal group voting with the government.

ANNEAL CHARGE

Alan Macfarlane (L—Oak Bay) charged that the real purpose behind the NDP-CCF motion was to "anneal" Frank McMahon without giving him the benefit of a full and impartial hearing.

The NDP-CCF speakers bitterly assailed Mr. McMahon as a man who had made millions of dollars in "political payoffs" from the Social Credit government.

NOT FACT

Minister Kenneth Kiernan, his voice shaking with anger, charged that the opposition resolution was not only unsound, it was uncalled for, and the statements supporting it were not statements of fact at all.

Construction of the Western Pacific pipeline by the McMahon interests, he said, was the soundest proposal suggested by any company and would be of great benefit to the economy of B.C. not only today but in the future as well.

COST 10,000 JOBS Mr. Macdonald, speaking in the Throne Speech debate, recalled that in the 1960 provincial election campaign, Mr. McMahon had stated that the defeat of the Social Credit government would cost 10,000 jobs in the province.

He has reaped a tremendous political payoff for this "investment," he said.

STOCK OPTIONS

He said the oil man had picked up stock options on 155,000 shares at five cents each on the construction of the Westcoast natural gas pipeline. The shares cost him $7,750. By 1960 they were worth $2,730,000.

Mr. Macdonald charged that another company had been given the right to build the crude oil line which was eventually built by Western Pacific but the government ruled this company out of contention "and there was only one person left who could build it — Frank McMahon."

LIKE A MOTHEE

"This government has been like a mothee to Frank McMahon," said the Vancouver lawyer.

In April last year an agreement between Westcoast Transmission and Western Pacific gave the new company "the right to utilize the right of way of Westcoast Transmission presently in existence from Taylor to Kamloops."

For this, Westcoast was given 730,000 shares of Western Pacific in payment.

Today those shares "before there was one whiff of crude

Peace Permit Sought

The British Columbia government expects to apply shortly to Ottawa for a permit under the Navigable Waters Act allowing construction of the Peace River hydro-electric dam.

Lands and Forests Minister Williston told this to reporters Thursday night after he ran through a long list of actual construction steps now under way or about to proceed, then told the legislature anyone who thinks the Peace River hydro project is not going ahead is being foolish and unrealistic.

He was asked outside the House when the province would seek authority under the federal Navigable Waters Act for the construction of the dam.

FILED IMMEDIATELY

"That's being prepared right now and will be filed with Ottawa almost immediately," he said.

The act is considered the only device Ottawa has to block construction of the Peace project in order to see that the Columbia River hydro-electric development proceeds first.

The application is expected to bring to a head the differences between Ottawa and Victoria over Columbia financing.

British Columbia has stated its policy as being one of simultaneous development of the Peace and the Columbia, which Ottawa has indicated it feels is not feasible if the Columbia is to proceed under terms of the International Columbia Treaty.

Premier Bennett wants to sell B.C.'s Columbia down stream benefit power in the

In Darkest Saanich

Roaring lions keep him awake at night and rifle shots shatter the daylight hours of Daniel MacDonald. But he failed to get the assessment lowered on his property at 281 Durrance Road.

"You are getting a trip to Africa for nothing," District 63 court of revision chairman H. E. Alder told him yesterday.

Mr. MacDonald complained that "every moonlit night the house shakes when the lions roar." His property is adjacent to both a zoo and a rifle range and during the daytime "we have to listen to that noise."

"It's an odd combination," said Mr. Alder sympathetically. "Unfortunately, although this is probably a nuisance to you, it is something that we cannot consider."

Another property-owner who appealed against his assessment lost his case but gained a higher assessment for a neighbor.

Dr. Edward Nash, 2785 Somers Drive, appealed against a 22 per cent increase in the assessment of five acres he owns on Patricia Bay Highway.

He lost the appeal but while Saanich assessors were comparing figures for nearby land they discovered the error in the neighbor's assessment.

Stolen Safe Found By Duncan Couple

DUNCAN — Searching for wood for their fireplace, Mr. and Mrs. Hamish Gibson of Somers Road yesterday found a safe stolen last Sunday from Bruce's Red and White Store.

"We were walking up Mount Prevost road about two miles off Somers Road when we saw the safe down in a gulley," Mr. Gibson said last night.

"My wife mentioned to me it was probably the safe left there after the robbery," he explained.

FOUND PAPERS

To make sure Mr. Gibson climbed down and found papers belonging to store operator Preston Bruce. Rushing back to Duncan and returning with Mr. Bruce and police officers the latter also found the missing truck from Duncan Motors on another side road only some 100 yards away from the safe.

NO DAMAGE

"There didn't seem to be any damage to the truck," Mr. Gibson stated. Happy to have his papers back Mr. Bruce said last night, "they didn't blow the safe but hacked the bottom open but we found a dynamite stick nearby."

He stated the thieves had taken the $2,000 cash and the cheques but had left the papers. The $2,000 loss is covered by insurance.

"We have worked for four days to straighten out the accounts which had been in the ledger book in the safe," Mr. Bruce said. "Our customers have been great in helping me," he added. Police said safe and truck have been safely returned to Duncan.

High-Level Arbitration Appeal Serves No Purpose, Says IWA

DUNCAN — A letter to Labor Minister Leslie Peterson from Lake Cowichan Merchants' Association asking the minister to bring IWA and Hillcrest Lumber Co. together to settle a month-old dispute over company transportation will not serve a useful purpose, said Local 180 IWA president Weldon Jubberville yesterday.

"I feel," the president stated, "the merchants should have put pressure on Hillcrest instead, for the solution to this problem is entirely in the hands of the company."

He added the transportation provided for 70 loggers from Duncan and Lake Cowichan areas was "definitely" a term of employment promised to employees as late as last fall shortly before the company announced cancellation of free transportation in 1962.

BEHIND LETTER

Several merchants at the Cowichan Lake logging community are fully behind the letter to Mr. Peterson. "As one of the storekeepers explained, "it is his job to look into this."

One of the solutions would be

$1,718,015 Budget Up for Approval

PORT ALBERNI — A 1962 budget of $1,718,015 has been submitted for approval to the provincial government by Port Alberni school district. The figure represents an increase of $129,700 over last year.

The budget increase is almost entirely due to an increase in teaching staff resulting from growth in enrolment in district schools.

With four new elementary schools already in operation since the last budget was drawn up, five more small schools are expected to be added to the system before time for the next district budget.

Enrolment in elementary and high schools of the district totalled 5,007 in December, 1960 and 5,287 in December, 1961.

Each of the men received either a cigarette lighter or a steel measuring tape for the accomplishment.

The crew is striving toward a goal of 375,000 accident free hours to win a gold safety award.

Face Lifting on Douglas To Start 'Within Week'

Beautification of the Douglas Street approach to Victoria will start within a week, city engineer James Garnett said last night.

The city's part of the beautification will include laying a watermain along the road, improving sidewalks, constructing boulevards and planting them with Scarlet Oak and Tulip Trees, and median traffic control strips.

Work should be completed in about three months, Mr. Garnett said—before the start of the city's tourist season.

Permits Queried

Free Parking To Outsiders Irks Aldermen

Smarting because some Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt councillors have city parking permits and city aldermen have none, Ald. A. W. Foote wants permits issued to members of city council.

He will suggest this to fellow-alderman Michael Griffin, chairman of the city's parking committee.

"In view of my own experience on city business, I feel aldermen should have these exceptions," he said.

NUMBERS ASKED

Aldermen were ruffled following a city police commission meeting when Mayor R. B. Wilson asked about the number of parking permits issued by the city.

City police commissioner Gordon Carter frankly admitted that he has used his special parking permit occasionally while not on police commission business.

A COUNTRY

And fellow-commissioner William Hamilton said it is "quite possible" that he has done the same. "It is a courtesy that we have," he said. "We are not paid like aldermen."

City manager C. C. Wyatt last night pointed out that the reeves and some councillors from Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt do hold parking permits, but they are restricted permits which are limited to certain streets.

And, he added, city aldermen have reserved parking available at all times behind city hall.

Mr. Wyatt said the restricted permits are issued to representatives of surrounding councils who have to enter the city on municipal business.

PARK ELSEWHERE

Such business includes meetings of the Victoria Public Library Board and the inter-municipal committee. The permits are restricted to individual streets and if the holders cannot find parking space on that street then they park elsewhere and pay like any citizen.

100 ISSUED

The list of parking permits issued at city hall and signed by Police Chief John Blackstock shows there are 100 permits which have been issued.

Of these, 82 are "blanket" permits which allow free parking anywhere in the city and 18 are restricted permits.

Suspended Sentence

A Parcel to Poland Father's Motive

A man who made a false declaration to city welfare in order to get enough money to send a food package to his daughter behind the Iron Curtain was given a suspended sentence in city police court yesterday.

Samuel Turega, 828 Courtney, who told the court through an interpreter he was "over 65," admitted obtaining $11.50 last spring by failing to declare earnings of $20.50.

SENT PARCEL

He used the money, he said, to send a parcel to his daughter in Poland, who had "just returned from Siberia."

"I wouldn't have done it if conditions in that country were better," he told the court.

Magistrate William Ostler, "Of course people in this country have sympathy for people who are in the unfortunate position your daughter finds herself."

"But you must not abuse the privileges and generosity of your adopted country."

Magistrate Ostler said he would suspend the sentence for 12 months, with a condition that the defendant appear in court again if he is charged with a similar offence.

He said there were several agencies willing to assist in serving cases.

"You are an old man and I can understand your paternal affection has swayed your judgment. I feel that this court appearance will serve as a sufficient deterrent," added the magistrate.

Evidence Barred

Court Will Review Old Ruling on Dogs

The B.C. Court of Appeal has agreed to a request by the attorney-general's office to review a 37-year-old Supreme Court ruling that bars evidence acquired by using police tracking dogs.

MAN ACQUITTED

A decision to have five or more of the eight appeal court judges review the 1925 ruling came at the conclusion of an unsuccessful application by the attorney-general to hold a new trial for Ronald Dale Haas, acquitted in Supreme Court on Oct. 13 on a charge of breaking and entering.

DOG USED

William R. McIntyre, representing the attorney-general, appealed against the trial judge's ruling (based on precedent), which held as inadmissible evidence obtained by use of an RCMP tracking dog.

WITH PRINCIPLE

Mr. McIntyre said no further action was contemplated against Haas and the application.

Oak Bay, Esquimalt Join Forces

Solid Opposition Block Forms Against Metro

Murphy Still Firm

Reeves George Murdoch and A. C. Wurtel served public notice yesterday a drive by Victoria and Saanich for a metro government study has forced Oak Bay and Esquimalt municipal councils into a solid block of opposition.

In a firmly-worded joint policy statement delivered in person to the Colonist, the Reeves charged that "one-sided" efforts of the city and Saanich will not produce intermunicipal harmony.

Text of their statement is on Page 27.

'GO IT ALONE'

Reeve Stanley Murphy of Saanich, informed of the development, said he may propose that Saanich and the city go it alone in some form of merger.

Mayor R. B. Wilson was out of town and not available for comment.

Statement of the two Reeves said they were willing to participate in an informal study of the problem at an intermunicipal committee level.

OPPOSE STUDY

But it said they oppose a formal study under terms of the Municipal Act because if it came to a referendum a two-thirds majority vote could nullify a 100 per cent opposition from either of the two smaller municipalities.

The statement said the two councils believe amalgamation is not in their interest at the present time and that now it would be a further burden to taxpayers.

SUBMIT BRIEF

Mayor Wilson and Reeve Murphy should submit a brief of their proposals to Oak Bay and Esquimalt councils, it continued. Both councils were also willing to submit a referendum to learn the attitude of the ratepayers.

No cost saving or efficiency increase would result from metro police and fire services, and it would not be right to ask taxpayers to pay for services desired by others.

NOT REQUIRED

"If Victoria and Saanich desire to amalgamate or form a metro government they can do so without Oak Bay or Esquimalt, the presence of neither of which is required geographically or on any other ground," said the joint statement.

Reeve Murphy said of the statement:

"They are actively protecting the interest of their municipalities but in my opinion the area interests are greater than those of the individual municipalities."

"I think the climate is favorable for amalgamation," said the Reeve.

Mothers' Fund Blitz Nets Record $36,000

By TED PULFORD

At hundreds of stops throughout Greater Victoria this morning, a very special group of housewives are knocking away at last night's dinner dishes and muttering over their aching feet.

They comprise the bell-ringing army of 2,200 marching mothers who descended on virtually every home in the city during the supper hour.

RECORD TAKE

And when the returns were all in and the hundreds of footsore canvassers had headed for home, delighted Poliomyelitis and Rehabilitation Foundation officials reported a record take of about $36,000 for the evening's work.

The Mothers' march is the annual fund-raising appeal organized by the foundation. It functions jointly in Victoria with the B.C. Society for crippled children.

DUPLICATED SCENE

At the W. J. Winger residence, 3183 Alder a few minutes after the march was over, there was a scene that was probably duplicated in half a hundred homes in the city.

Relaxing in her living room, her stockings feet propped on a coffee table, Mrs. Winger and her six fellow campaigners reviewed the hour-long fund blitz.

SAILED THROUGH

"We got marvelous cooperation everywhere we went," she said.

The Winger contingent, one mother short for the campaign, pressed Mr. Winger into service.

"Good thing they did, too," roared the marching dad from the kitchen. "I got more money than any of 'em!"

He was hoisted down by the group in the living room.

Peddling Ban Sought

A move to block door-to-door selling racks by transients was initiated in Victoria yesterday.

And at the same time the question of starting a better business bureau in Victoria was re-activated.

Both moves were made following reports some Victoria residents have been charged high prices by some home repair firms.

A meeting of city committee yesterday recommended to city council a motion dealing with transient traders.

The motion calls for a performance bond to be posted by all persons doing business within a municipality in which they do not pay a business tax.

Regarding the better business bureau, the committee decided to send a letter to Victoria Chamber of Commerce seeking its views.

A similar request sent some months ago had not been answered, the committee was told.

B.C. Ferry Subsidy Debated in Ottawa

The question of how big a subsidy will be paid toward the construction of the two new B.C. government ferries to be built at Victoria Machinery Depot is now under discussion by the federal treasury board.

In a telegram to Premier Bennett yesterday, Prime Minister Diefenbaker promised to let the B.C. government know the decision "as soon as possible."

Premier Bennett earlier wired Ottawa asking for clarification of a telegram from the federal maritime commission stating that the subsidy could not be guaranteed unless Canadian-built engines were installed in the ships.

Low tender for the engines was a British firm.

'Quiet' Bennett Banquet Becomes Big Promotion

Peter Bruton's NOTEBOOK

ALL AT SEA: When the local Jaycees first proposed an "Appreciation to Premier Bennett" banquet as the city's thanks for the government ferry service it had all the earmarks of being one of those quaint little Victoria-style affairs.

The Jaycees, of course, are non-political.

But the affair they first thought up is getting that way.

A big Vancouver advertising agency, which just happens to have the account of the government ferry service, has now entered the picture and is helping to promote the day's celebrations.

Maybe these services were offered free. I don't know.

But it all smacks of a randomized Social Credit campaign to me.

REGN IN PASSING: Every one is familiar with those "Sorry for Any Inconvenience" signs put up throughout the province by Highway Minister Phil Gagliardi.

Alex Macdonald, the lawyer who represents Vancouver East for the New Democratic Party (NDCP), had a suggestion to offer yesterday for a companion sign.

This sign should read: With courtesy and rope don't pick a bone.

The life you save may be your own. —P. A. Gagliardi.

SHORT TAKE: Big Gordon Gibbons, the North Vancouver Liberal, rose to his feet at the end of yesterday afternoon's sitting and said: "Mr. Speaker, I move adjournment of this debate until the next sitting of the House."

The Sacred backbenchers pounded their desks in glee.

"Best speech you ever made, Gordon," shouted Highway Minister Phil Gagliardi.

QUOTABLE QUOTES: During his speech yesterday Alex Macdonald came up with a few sayings which took our fancy. . . .

"If this feuding goes on (over the Columbia River project) we'll have to call in the United Nations to settle things between Takuqua Bennett and Fulton Adams."

"If all the statements of this government were laid end to end they would form a perfect circle."

"Some people are so unkind as to say that the Social Credit party has no program. But of course it has. Their program is to stay in office!"

WE GET LETTERS: Should Premier Bennett answer mail from the opposition?

Of course not, said William Speare (SC-Cariboo).

He said he personally wouldn't answer a postcard from the opposition because a wire stretcher it would only be taken out of context and used for making political capital.

BITS AND PIECES: So many people have been invited to go for that cruise aboard the new M.V. City of Victoria Saturday that it's doubtful whether all could get aboard anyway. But officials say the ship is leaving sharp at 10 a.m. and anyone who has not arrived before that, and cashed in their invitation on a boarding pass, are going to miss the boat. . . . William Speare, the Social Credit member for Cariboo, made a real plaintive case in the legislature yesterday about how "we" live in the freezing snow in the north.

For the past two years he's been living in Saanich. . . . Geoff Ellis tells of the Victoria University undergrad from up Prince George way who wanted to play football but the coach convinced him that he was too light and that he would probably do well on the fencing team which he could join after the Christmas holidays. At the first meeting he showed up with a post-hole digger and a wire stretcher!

Rusk Asks Help

Will Canada Play Ball?

WASHINGTON (CP)—State Secretary Dean Rusk virtually invited Canada and other countries to join with the U.S. and a majority of Latin American countries in isolating Cuba from the rest of the western hemisphere.

Rusk said Thursday on his return from the Punta del Este conference that the U.S. intends to do all it can to block the flow of Soviet-type arms from Cuba to other Latin American countries.

PROMOTE SUBVERSION

Rusk also said U.S. intelligence has discovered that Premier Castro of Cuba is using dollars and other foreign exchange to promote Communist subversion in neighboring countries.

A Canadian correspondent, then asked:

"Mr. Secretary, on that point... to what extent would all the resolutions accepted at the Punta del Este conference be effective without the active participation by Canada?"

SUGGESTS ALIGNMENT

Rusk answered: "Well, of course, we do hope that other countries, having seen the clear expressions of policy and attitude of the Organization of American States, would consider—and I am not referring to any single country—would consider whether they might align their policies with the policies of the inter-American system."

Infuriating Princess More Fun, Anyway

LONDON (CP)—A woman reporter springs to the defence of Princess Margaret.

Anne Sharpley, who has covered numerous royal tours, takes note of recent criticisms of Margaret, acknowledges that the Queen's sister is sometimes a little difficult, but sums up:

"Well... so... she's a princess. What else do we really expect? Don't we get a private kick from having a full-blooded, contrary, infuriating princess? Isn't she more fun than a line-tossing, anxious-to-please princess?"

A perilous two-day adventure aboard this 16-foot outboard bobbing at the mercy of the tide in Juan de Fuca Strait ended yesterday when two runaway boys were rescued near Whidbey Island.

Strait ended yesterday when two runaway boys were rescued near Whidbey Island.

Runaways Found Adrift

By JACK FREY

Two runaway boys from Victoria who drifted power-boat for two days in Juan de Fuca Strait in a boat taken from the Oak Bay boathouse were rescued yesterday by an American fisherman.

The youths, 13 and 14 years of age, ran away Tuesday night from the Carey Road foster home. A 16-foot outboard motorboat owned by Herbert Shaw, 1856 Montclair, was taken from the boathouse the same evening.

Two Days In Boat

The boys will be returned to Victoria today. They were kept overnight at the Clallam County juvenile home.

Washington State police said the boys turned themselves in yesterday afternoon and that they admitted they took the boat because they "wanted to see the world."

Fisherman Tom Phillips, 36, of Port Angeles, told the Colonist last night he came upon the stranded boys about 2 p.m. in a dense fog at Hein's Bank near Whidbey Island.

He cut short his fishing trip to take them back to Port Angeles where they said they lived. He said they had hot chocolate, tinny peaches and crackers and took their outboard in tow behind his 42-foot trawler Sirobas.

The $2,200 boat, powered by twin 10-horsepower outboard motors, was undamaged, said the fisherman. And the two boys were wearing life jackets when he found them.

Phillips said the boys told him they hadn't eaten in more than two days and that they had been drifting with the tide since about 9 p.m. Tuesday when they ran out of gas.

Hydro Strikes Banned

Employees of the new provincial hydro-electric authority will be given full collective bargaining rights, but they will not have the right to strike, Labor Minister Peterson said yesterday.

Instead of the strike and lockout provisions accorded other trade unions and private employers, the hydro authority and its employees will be subject to binding arbitration procedures in cases of disputes.

Mr. Peterson made the statements in the legislature as he outlined the government's approach to the trade union problem involved in its takeover of the B.C. Electric Co. and the subsequent merging of the B.C. Electric with the B.C. Power Commission, a move forecast in the Speech from the Throne.

FUNDAMENTAL RIGHT

In Victoria, labor council secretary Alf Toone wasn't impressed.

"For the minister to say workers will have all the bargaining rights but the right to strike is to say they have been given fringe concessions but were denied their most fundamental right."

"I believe that as a last resort an employee must be allowed the right to withdraw his services from an employer. The fact that the government is the employer doesn't alter the question."

But in Vancouver, the Electrical Workers' Union and the Office Employees' Union welcomed the government's announcement as a constructive

Comic Opera

Gibson Scores Spending Power 'Mania'

By ALEC MERRIMAN

The government was lectured for more than an hour last night by millionaire Gordon Gibson (L—North Vancouver).

And his speech was both funny and serious — often stormy, but sometimes quiet — had the House and public galleries in gusts of laughter and at times the premier and government members squirming in their seats.

It was a funnier show than many comic operas, but through all the speech there was a sting. Often his address was aimed at the premier instead of the Speaker.

Mr. Gibson said he had been in Hawaii for three months (he has interests there) and that he didn't go there for selfish reasons.

"I have been there preparing a place for you. I don't believe in capital punishment for political prisoners. I would rather throw them in exile," he said. "I built 12 lovely cottages. It's a lovely place... palm trees... And I haven't told them a word about Social Credit, so you will be very welcome," he said.

But, he warned the premier, if he goes on spending money like he is, he won't even have the one-way fare to Hawaii.

FUT ON BARGE

"I would like you to have all your books and everything ready. I would like them put on a barge like you had at Kelowna and after the next election everything can go up."

"Will your yacht be included?" laughed the premier.

"I would like to get rid of it"

Oil Profits Under Fire

Made $11,000,000
'For Signature'

By PETER BRUTON

The NDP-CCF opposition launched a massive frontal attack on oil magnate Frank McMahon yesterday and demanded that the government resign for not protecting the public against the oilman's "stock-profiteering."

Alex Macdonald (NDP-CCF—Vancouver East) charged that Westcoast Transmission made $11,000,000 simply by signing an agreement with the Social Credit government to build a crude oil pipeline from Fort St. John south to Kamloops.

"This scandal is far worse than the scandal that rocked the Liberal government out of Ottawa in 1957," it was charged.

The motion that the government resign was defeated 32 to 14 with the four-man Liberal group voting with the government.

SMEAR CHARGE

Alan Macfarlane (L—Oak Bay) charged that the real purpose behind the NDP-CCF motion was to "smear" Frank McMahon without giving him the benefit of a full and impartial hearing.

The NDP-CCF speakers bitterly assailed Mr. McMahon as a man who had made millions of dollars in "political payoffs" from the Social Credit government.

NOT FACT

Minister Kenneth Kiernan, his voice shaking with anger, charged that the opposition resolution was not only unsound, it was uncalled for, and the statements supporting it were not statements of fact at all.

Construction of the Western Pacific pipeline by the McMahon interests, he said, was the soundest proposal suggested by any company and would be of great benefit to the economy of B.C. not only today but in the future as well.

COST 10,000 JOBS

Mr. Macdonald, speaking in the Throne Speech debate, recalled that in the 1960 provincial election campaign, Mr. McMahon had stated that the defeat of the Social Credit government would cost 10,000 jobs in the province.

He has repudiated a tremendous political payoff for this 'investment,' he said.

STOCK OPTIONS

He said the oil man had picked up stock options on 155,000 shares at five cents each on the construction of the Westcoast natural gas pipeline. The shares cost him $7,750. By 1960 they were worth $2,750,000.

Mr. Macdonald charged that another company had been given the right to build the crude oil line which was eventually built by Western Pacific but the government ruled this company out of contention "and there was only one person left who could build it — Frank McMahon."

LIKE A MOTHER

"This government has been like a mother to Frank McMahon," said the Vancouver lawyer.

In April last year an agreement between Westcoast Transmission and Western Pacific gave the new company "the right to utilize the right of way of Westcoast Transmission presently in existence from Taylor to Kamloops."

For this, Westcoast was given 750,000 shares of Western Pacific in payment.

Today those shares "before there was one whiff of crude"

Peace Permit Sought

The British Columbia government expects to apply shortly to Ottawa for a permit under the Navigable Waters Act allowing construction of the Peace River hydro-electric dam.

Lands and Forests Minister Williston told this to reporters Thursday night after he ran through a long list of actual construction steps now under way or about to proceed, then told the legislature anyone who thinks the Peace River hydro project is not going ahead is being foolish and unrealistic.

He was asked outside the House when the province would seek authority under the federal Navigable Waters Act for the construction of the dam.

FILED IMMEDIATELY

"That's being prepared right now and will be filed with Ottawa almost immediately," he said.

The act is considered the only device Ottawa has to block construction of the Peace project in order to see that the Columbia River hydro-electric development proceeds first.

The application is expected to bring to a head the differences between Ottawa and Victoria over Columbia financing.

British Columbia has stated its policy as being one of simultaneous development of the Peace and the Columbia, which Ottawa has indicated it feels is not feasible if the Columbia is to proceed under terms of the International Columbia Treaty.

Premier Bennett wants to sell B.C.'s Columbia downstream benefit power in the Roaring lions keep him awake at night and rifle shots shatter the daylight hours of Daniel MacDonald. But he failed to get the assessment lowered on his property at 281 Durrance Road.

"You are getting a trip to Africa for nothing," District 63 court of revision chairman H. E. Alder told him yesterday.

Mr. MacDonald complained that "every moonlit night the house shakes when the lions roar." His property is adjacent to both a moose and a rifle range and during the daytime "we have to listen to that noise."

"It's an odd combination," said Mr. Alder sympathetically. "Unfortunately, although this is probably a nuisance to you, it is something that we cannot consider."

Another property-owner who appealed against his assessment lost his case but gained a higher assessment for a neighbor.

Dr. Everard Nash, 2785 Somers Drive, appealed against a 32 per cent increase in the assessment of five acres he owns on Patricia Bay Highway.

He lost the appeal but while Saanich assessors were comparing figures for nearby land they discovered the error in the neighbor's assessment.

MONTREAL (UPI) — Between 40 and 50 doctors in French language hospitals in the province have submitted their resignations in protest over a Quebec government order setting up a 16-hour week and a ceiling on the incomes of certain types of medical practitioners. It was learned last night.
